GERMAN PILOTLESS PLANES ATTACK ENGLAND

YANKS COMMAND LAST MAIN ROAD TO CHERBOURG

'SECRET' AIRCRAFT BY DOZENS RAID SOUTHERN BRITAIN IN DAY AND NIGHT

Casualties, Considerable Damage — Flame-Spitting and Speedy, Robot Weapons Explode on or Near Ground.

By LEWIS HAWKINS
LONDON, June 16 (AP).—Flame-spitting pilotless planes drove into Southern England last night and today in the Germans' first "secret weapon" reaction to the invasion of France.

These craft, descending by the dozens and exploding on the ground or close to it, caused deaths and considerable damage at scattered points and sent anti-aircraft guns barking extensively in daylight for the first time since the early blitz days of 1940.

An official announcement tonight said enemy activity has been continuing intermittently throughout the day, although on a smaller scale than last night. Incidents have occurred at several places in Southern England and damage and casualties have been reported.

Nazi Attempt at Diversion.
The Nazis in using the new weapon were striking against the flow of Allied strength into the successful bridgehead in France, hoping to divert it.

The British Information Service disclosed that "mystery" military installations in the Pas de Calais area of France which Allied forces had bombed for nearly a year before D-day, were the launching platforms for the pilotless planes.

Descriptions of the weapon in operation varied considerably but all eyewitnesses agreed that the self-destructing aircraft flew at terrific speed in a straight line, were marked by bright lights, and shot flames from their exhausts, suggesting they might be jet or rocket-propelled.

The lights presumably were to aid in radio control, probably from piloted planes at a great distance. The planes made an odd rumbling sound as they came over under a heavy layer of cloud cover.

CARRIER FORCE ATTACKS BASES IN BONIN ISLANDS

Strike Within 600 Miles of Japan—Yank Invaders of Saipan Advance Inland.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—An American carrier task force, reaching within 600 miles of Tokyo, pounded three Japanese bases in the Bonin and Volcano island groups southeast of Japan Wednesday, shooting down 47 enemy planes, sinking two enemy ships, damaging 10 others and blasting barracks, airfields and fuel supplies, the Navy announced today.

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, June 16 (AP).—American troops, landed on Saipan island in the Marianas, 1500 miles southeast of Tokyo, advanced today against Japanese tanks, artillery and infantry.

F. B. I. MEN TRAP FOUR IN PULLMAN TICKET RACKET

Union Station Bureau Man, Madison (Ill.) Firm Officers and Ex-Clerk Plead Guilty.

An assistant supervisor of the reservation bureau at Union Station, two officials of the Standard Steel Spring Co. of Madison, Ill., and a former clerk of that company, were arrested today by the Federal Bureau of Investigation on warrants charging them with conspiracy to violate the Interstate Commerce Act in obtaining Pullman reservations.

The complaint, which lists 11 overt acts, stated that the spring company officials paid the Terminal Railroad Association supervisor $10 a week to make Pullman reservations for them whenever desired by discriminating against other customers of the Pullman and railroad companies.

Gerald B. Norris, chief of the F. B. I. in St. Louis, said this black market in railroad accommodations had been under investigation by his department since March, 1942. This, however, is the first prosecution in St. Louis. He said several similar cases, now being investigated, are expected to be ready for presentation to the United States District Court grand jury when it reconvenes later this month.

Those arrested were Mark Henry Briedy, 9021 Rosemary street, Gardenville, assistant supervisor of the reservation bureau; Edward Frederick Hamm, 5602A Vernon avenue, a former clerk for the spring company; Earl Ferdinand Wharton of 1539 Douglas drive, Collinsville, traffic manager for the company; and Truman Hutton Gilbert of 1459 Lyndale avenue, University City, passenger traffic representative of the company.

Award of 150,000 Medals Upheld By Marshall as Morale-Builder

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—Gen. George C. Marshall, Army chief of staff, is "disturbed" about what he considers a lack of understanding of the value of combat decorations in sustaining the morale of fighting men.

"Napoleon is alleged to have said: 'Give me enough ribbon to place on the tunics of my soldiers and I can conquer the world,'" Marshall said in a letter made public by Representative Martin (Rep.), Iowa, of the House Military Committee. "I cannot vouch for the accuracy of that quotation, but I certainly share the view which such statement indicates."

AMERICANS DRIVE AHEAD 5 MILES, SMASH STRONG NAZI RESISTANCE

Capture Junction Town of St. Sauveur—British in Heavy Tank Battles on Eastern Sector of Front.

ST. SAUVEUR, LE VICOMTE, June 16 (AP).—Hard-driving American troops today broke through tough German resistance, crossed the Douves River and reached St. Sauveur le Vicomte, commanding the road net on the central Cherbourg peninsula and the last main road to Cherbourg.

A late field dispatch told of the capture of St. Sauveur, 17 miles due south of Cherbourg and nine miles from the west coast of the peninsula, after a five-mile American advance.

By WES GALLAGHER
SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 16 (AP).—Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley's American troops, ramming home another blow to cut off Cherbourg, have advanced to within two and one-half miles east of St. Sauveur, a junction controlling two of the three remaining roads leading to the port, Allied headquarters announced today.

The Americans marked up a gain of 2½ to three miles west of Cherbourg after having previously reached Reigneville. St. Sauveur is on the main road to Cherbourg on the west side of the peninsula. A secondary surfaced road parallels it to the west.

Plugging away on a 10-mile front and making repeated gains despite stubborn resistance, the Americans were now within 11 miles of the Cherbourg peninsula's west coast. Their spearhead was some 17 miles below the port. St. Sauveur junction was under American artillery fire.

Headquarters said the American thrust to cut off the last communications to Cherbourg was "substantially increasing."

British in Tank Battles.
While Bradley's Yanks still fought a ding-dong battle with Germans in the sectors of Montebourg, 14 miles southeast of Cherbourg on the Allied right flank, the British were engaged in stiff tank battles with German troops in force two miles south of Caumont. This is about 20 miles inland, the deepest Allied penetration.

Tank battles still raged also around Caen and Tilly-sur-Seuilles on the Allied left flank.

WILLKIE IS INVITED TO CONVENTION, BUT NOT AS A SPEAKER

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—Wendell L. Willkie said today that Republican National Chairman Harrison E. Spangler had offered to provide him with a ticket to the Republican national convention. Commenting on Spangler's statement that Willkie had been invited to the convention, Willkie said: "Seems 'orrible queer to me,' said one 80-year-old woman. 'I believe I'd rather have bombs.'"

"Wierdest night I ever had," commented a policeman, keeping a wary eye and ear on a swishing noise in the sky.

"I don't like the idea of nobody in those planes," said a delivery boy. "I don't know why but it's sorta ghosty. But we'll get used to 'em like we did the rest."

Target of Superfortress Bombs

Japanese 'Completely Amazed'—Raid Not Only Avenged Pearl Harbor, but Also Doolittle's Men.

CHUNGKING, June 16 (AP).—OY PORTER, National Broadcasting Co. correspondent who flew with the B-29s over Japan as the representative of the combined American radio networks, broadcast this account today:

The attacks were swift and surprising. They came with almost complete amazement to the Japs. We'd run into rigorous action with that mysterious weapon of American planning and skill, the Superfortress, known as the B-29.

Tons upon tons of bombs were dropped on the coke-ovens and open hearth furnaces. Japanese anti-aircraft fire poured into the sky, and shell-fragments dug deeply into the super-bombers, but the engines kept turning and nearly all the ships came home. Eleven war correspondents went on the trip to see, at the invitation of the Twentieth Bomber Command, the show of shows.

It's not too much to say that the silver and olive drab dragonflies, as some of the crews have nicknamed these new B-29s, have struck at the heart of the dragon itself. And simultaneously the news came of the preliminary raid that has been made on Japan-occupied Bangkok in Thailand, in the last week. The dragonfly is beginning to make itself felt.

The attack on the Japanese mainland by the B-29s demonstrated one fact which our air force has long been endeavoring to learn. The lesson being studied today, as the reports of pilots and crews are compiled, is that while the enemy was caught by surprise in the initial attacks, he has prepared defenses and he can march

430,000 CHINESE HELPED BUILD SECRET BASES FOR B-29S, MOSTLY BY HAND

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—AMES STEWART, former Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent in Chungking, said in a broadcast yesterday the Superfortresses that bombed Japan "took off and landed on Chinese bases" constructed secretly in western China with native labor. In the peak employment period 430,000 Chinese farmers were used.

Lt. Col. Waldo Kennerson of Boston, Mass., was in charge of the work, Stewart reported. "I visited Col. Kennerson at work early this spring," he said. "We stood on one of the largest fields under construction. There 67,000 Chinese farmers were toiling with their hands laying the stone foundations, layer by layer. . . . No cement was available. At first there were no machines such as rock crushers and steam rollers. In fact, for certain layers of all the fields, each stone was placed by hand."

shal enough night-fighter planes to cause at least some interference with our bombing pattern. For the most part, during the first period of this regular mission against the Japanese mainland, very little developed except searchlights and anti-aircraft. In the second phase, the anti-aircraft fire died down.

That, to experienced flyers, is the signal that night fighters have been called in. The third period was the crucial one, when the Japs fighters actually pressed their attack home . . . with only meager results.

B-29s reporting back to bases in the early morning hours of Friday said they showed some bullet holes, but very little material damage. The B-29s, planned and executed as an offensive weapon has, its own pilots believe, proved its worth.

Imperial Steel Works Produced Fifth of Japan's Steel—Bangkok Raided Earlier by B-29s.

By CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH
UNITED STATES SUPERFORTRESS BASE IN WESTERN CHINA, June 16 (AP).—American B-29s struck a terrific body blow at Japan's war industry and may have knocked out a fifth of the empire's steel production in yesterday's raid on Yawata, the Pittsburgh of Japan.

The world's most powerful warplanes made the longest bombing flight in history and left trains of demolition bombs bursting in the Imperial Iron and Steel Works at Yawata, in northern Kyushu.

"This is but the beginning of our organized destruction of the Japanese industrial empire," commented Brig. Gen. Kenneth B. Wolfe, who was chiefly responsible for the production of the B-29.

The Imperial works, largest in the Japanese Empire, is credited with 20 per cent of Japanese steel production.

Yesterday's mission was a combined psychological and strategic stroke at the maximum power of the long-secret Twentieth Bomber Command.

Actually, however, this was the second Superfortress raid. These planes bombed the Makasan railway shops at Bangkok on June 5 in a combat shake down operation.

The raid on Japan came on the heels of Japanese Premier Hideki Tojo's declaration that the Japanese themselves were preparing a surprise Japanese stations were broadcasting English versions of the Premier's declaration and playing pirated American swing music when Wolfe's raiders came back.

The first target attacked in Japan by the new weapon was one of the most strongly defended in the Japanese home islands.

FOUR SUPERFORTS MISSING; ONE LOST OVER TARGET MAY BE IN FOE'S HANDS

Two Down in Accidents, Another Unreported—Raiders From China Left Yawata Plant a 'Mass of Wreckage.'

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—Four of America's mighty B-29 Superfortresses were lost in yesterday's attack that left "glowing masses of wreckage" in Japan's industrial city of Yawata, and one of them now may be in enemy hands.

The Twentieth Bomber Command, adding in midafternoon today new details of the raid, said one of the giant planes "was lost due to anti-aircraft action over the target."

One plane is missing and two failed to return to their bases in China because of accidents, but the crew of one of those is safe.

The War Department said flyers who participated in the mission asserted that the bombing was accurate and that large fires and explosions were observed.

Yawata is one of Japan's greatest steel producing cities.

"Pittsburgh of Japan."

Clyde A. Farnsworth, Associated Press correspondent writing from a Superfortress base in western China, said the blow against Yawata, the "Pittsburgh of Japan," delivered in the darkness of early morning, may have knocked out a fifth of Japan's steel production.

The number of participating aircraft was not made known as first details emerged on the historic attack, but the formation was described as "a sizable task force."

Text of New Communiqué.

The second communiqué issued by the Twentieth Bomber Command follows:

"The Imperial Iron and Steel Works, Japan's largest steel mills located at Yawata on Kyushu island in the Japanese homeland, was the target of yesterday's B-29 mission of the Twentieth Bomber Command."

"The bombing was accurate and effective. Enemy fighter craft offered some resistance to a few units. Anti-aircraft fire was moderate to intense over the target area. No enemy planes were reported shot down. There were no casualties aboard returning aircraft. Four planes failed to return from the mission. Of these, one was lost due to anti-aircraft action over the target. Two failed to return due to accidents and of these the crew of one is known to be safe. A fourth airplane is missing."

The original communiqué, which disclosed that the Superfortresses had flown from bases in China, had reported also the loss of the two B-29s as the result of accidents.

Earlier Communiqué.

The text of the first communiqué follows:

"A sizable task force of B-29s from the Twentieth Bomber Command bombed industrial targets at Yawata, on the Kyushu island in the Japanese homeland on Thursday, June 15."

B-29S' TARGET ONE OF MAINSTAYS OF JAPAN'S WAR INDUSTRY

craft was moderate to intense, none of the planes was lost as a result of enemy action. "Flyers who participated in the mission report the bombing was accurate and that large fires and explosions were observed. "The planes operated from bases in China which were completely recently. Two B-29s were lost as the result of accidents, one crew of which is safe. This communiqué is based on the preliminary incomplete reports from the combat zone."

"Answer to Pearl Harbor."

The raid, leaving behind "glowing masses of wreckage," gave the Japanese Empire, in the words of an eyewitness, its "answer to Dec. 7, 1941—Pearl Harbor."

Radio Correspondent Roy Porter, first to report of 11 reporters who accompanied the aerial onslaughts on their mission, said in a broadcast over the combined American networks from the Far East that "tons upon tons of bombs were dropped" on coke ovens and open hearth furnaces of Japanese steel mills.

The raid aimed the Japanese, according to Porter, but, flak defense went into prompt action. "Japanese anti-aircraft fire poured into the sky," he said, "and shell fragments dug deeply into the superstructure."

"But the engines kept turning, and nearly all the ships came home."

The returning ships, he added, showed "some bullet holes but very little material damage."

The target at Yawata was the Imperial Steel and Iron Works, Porter disclosed. The mill is a mainstay in Japan's war industry.

A heavy anti-aircraft fire and Japanese night fighters were encountered, he said.

Heavy Industries in Area. The Imperial Steel and Iron Works sometimes is called the "Krupp of Japan." The target is some 500 miles southwest of Tokyo and is the most important of several heavy industrial cities. It is separated from Honshu, the island on which Tokyo is situated, by the narrow Shimonoseki-Moji Strait under which a railroad tunnel has been built in recent years.

(Within 100 miles of Yawata are such important centers as Sasebo, one of Japan's two largest naval bases, Nagasaki, huge port and other important steel, ship building and marshalling and troop embarkation centers.)

Although Porter and the communiqué said the specific target was Yawata, the Tokyo radio said Moji and Kokura were hit.

All three are in Northern Kyushu, southernmost portion of the Japanese mainland.

An earlier enemy broadcast had acknowledged that the Yawata plant of the Japan Iron Manufacturing Co. had been hit with "a few bomb fragments" but asserted there was "no damage whatever to plant facilities."

The Axis radio is cluttering with totally unconfirmed claims that the aerial giants did little damage that several were shot down, and that Japanese morale was "heightened" by the raid.

Japanese Communiqué. Imperial headquarters announced the raid last night in the following broadcast communiqué: "War results achieved in the raid on the northern Kyushu area today, June 15, U. S. time, at dawn, which have been confirmed up to the present: "Losses inflicted on enemy planes: Seven shot down, three damaged.

"Our losses: Apart from several casualties suffered among the ground forces, the air force and the ground military installations suffered almost no loss.

"Fires which started in several places were quickly extinguished by 5 a. m. June 16."

An earlier communiqué said: "Today, June 16, at about 2 a. m. from the China area, about 20 B-29

Air, Sea and Land Blows Against Japs

Arrow from China indicates the Superfortress "task force" thrust against Japan yesterday, which had the steel industries of Yawata, on Honshu Island, as a major target. ALLIES CAPTURE GROSSETO, ITALY GAIN BIG AIRPORT

No Sign of Organized Enemy Resistance Anywhere as Troops Press Rapidly Forward.

ROME, June 16 (AP).—American troops today captured Grosseto, an important road junction more than 100 miles northwest of Rome. With the town's capture the Allies obtained use of one of Italy's major military airports.

ROME, June 16 (AP).—The Allies smashed forward from the Adriatic to the Tyrrhenian Sea today, some troops advancing as much as 25 miles in 24 hours, and captured important highway towns, including Acquafredda, Narni and Terni, along the way. Farthest advance came by the Eighth Army in the capture of Terni, approximately 60 air miles northeast of Rome, and only 85 miles south of the Pisa-Rimini line, where the fleeing Germans may make a stand.

There has been no sign of any organized enemy defense in front of a line running from Pisa on the west coast through the city of Florence to Rimini on the Adriatic.

The Fifth Army pushed above Lake Bolsena and captured Acquafredda, about seven miles north on Highway 2.

The Eighth Army captured the important industrial and communications center of Terni, 45 miles northwest of Rome, and the highway junction town of Narni, about seven miles southwest of Terni. Other Eighth Army troops advanced 10 miles north of Orvieto, and in the Adriatic sector the Nazis have withdrawn so rapidly that the Allied troops have been able to maintain only a slender contact with the enemy.

Inland the drive past Lake Bolsena was carrying forward toward Prosecco, three miles beyond Acquafredda. East of the lake the Eighth Army reached Massa Martana, 18 miles north of Terni. To the west other Eighth Army forces pushed up Highway 71 to Ficule, 10 miles beyond Orvieto.

With the break in their lines, the Germans have been suffering considerable casualties the last three days. Some have been running away, throwing down their equipment, and one Eighth Army armored regiment took so many prisoners that help had to be sent to bring them in.

Lightnings and Mustangs shot up five enemy airfields in the vicinity of Avignon in Southern France yesterday, destroying planes, hangars, locomotives and tank cars, on nearby rail lines. Eighteen Allied planes were lost.

"These giant battleships of the air are far superior to any plane our enemies have been able to develop. American engineering genius and American industrial skill have combined to create this powerful new weapon, capable of carrying the war to the most remote homeland of our enemies."

"They may well ponder when and where and how we shall use this mighty task force next. I congratulate the men who planned this action and manned the airplanes which carried it out. These pioneers have shortened our road to Tokyo."

Statement by Stimson. Secretary of War Stimson said the bombings represented the beginning of another phase of the war in the Pacific, and declared that no corner of the Japanese homeland is now safe from attack. "The new long-distance bombers have overcome the tremen-

PEOPLE OF JAPAN ARE TOLD TO THINK THAT 'WE HAVE PULLED FOE TOWARD US'

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).

WINNING official concern over the first raid on Japan by the American B-29 Superfortresses, the Imperial Cabinet met with Premier Gen. Hideki Tojo this morning, a Tokyo broadcast said.

Kichisaburo Ando, Home Affairs Minister; Matsuoka, Foreign Minister; and Keita Goto, Transportation and Communications Minister, were said to have reported to the Cabinet that damage in the raid was "very slight."

Ando also was said to have reported directly to Emperor Hirohito.

The Japanese people today were told not to become "spiritually depressed." The Office of War Information said, quoting Japanese radio spokesmen, one propagandist said the Japanese "should not think that we have been passively attacked, but that we have actively pulled the enemy toward us."

FUEL FOR SUPERFORTRESSES FLOWN TO BASES IN ASIA

Curtiss-Wright Commandos in Service on "Aerial Burma Road."

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—Gasoline and oil for the giant engines of the B-29 Superfortresses are being flown over the "aerial Burma road" to bomber bases, a spokesman for the Curtiss-Wright Corporation disclosed yesterday with War Department approval.

About three-fourths of the transport planes being used are Curtiss C-46 Commandos, the others being principally Douglas C-54 Sky-masters.

The Commandos have served as a "flying pipeline" for many months to build up gasoline stores for use in raids such as that announced yesterday, the company said.

Wings for some of the Commandos that ferried fuel for the bombing raid were made in the Curtiss-Wright plant at Lambert-St. Louis Field, plant officials there disclosed today.

The first to be attacked by B-29 fighter planes on that same "hump" trip.

In last night's operations—that is, so far as the flying weather is concerned—it was third. The way that it flew and the way that it bombed, will make it first for me forever.

We took off from a base in western China carrying a large load of bombs and gasoline. We arrived at the target at exactly 11:09 p. m. It was at that moment that our bombs plunged downward toward their Japanese marks.

The two minutes that preceded it, however, were—as we say in the air force—rugged.

In the first place, the alarm had already been given by the first two planes. The searchlight batteries were full on. The enemy aircraft was blazing below. And even before we got near the target lack against Yawata was surprise. The first dips over the target found that the area was unguarded against the destructive results of the bombings. In itself, that one factor is of vital importance since the iron and steel company in the harbor area is the factory that Japan needs to keep her war machine running against us and our Allies. What effect this bombing mission may have on the course of the war not even the people who have planned the raid will know, but it is an assured fact that the whole plan, mapped out long ago and carried through to relatively successful conclusion, has brought more importance to our long-range bombing program and similarly to the enemy's often-publicized defense plan.

The boys who flew the raid last night now know that there are defenses there, but they also know that they are not as formidable as they have been made out to be by the Japs.

The B-29 raid, the first on the Japanese mainland from Chinese bases, started off with a bang and finished with a flourish. From first to finish, it was an American show, with American planes, American bombs, American apparatus and American crews.

But there are two other nations involved in the planning of this gigantic air offensive. First, China—because without hundreds of thousands of Chinese coolies, the raids would never have been possible, because there would have been no airfields from which to bomb. The second nation involved—that's Japan, involved itself by the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor on that infamous day of Dec. 7, 1941.

Target Dark at Start. Another broadcast by Porter said: "The big attack which the Twentieth Bomber Command sprang on the Japs at Yawata on the Japanese mainland last night caught the enemy completely by surprise."

The first plane, piloted by Lt. Col. William Kenny Springfield, O., and which carried Lt. Col. William Dreck of Washington as an official observer, flew in to the target in almost complete darkness, marked only by a few searchlights. The next ship was piloted by Lt. Col. William Fluch of Los Angeles, and with Lt. Col. James Caucier of Colorado, as the observer. By that time the searchlights were going on. The anti-aircraft fire had started.

"I was in the third ship, which its crew affectionately calls 'the first ship' of its own group. It hasn't any nickname, but its engines are named for wives and girlfriends of the crew. This airplane got its nickname of 'first' because it was the first B-29 to be flown by its own crew overseas from the United States. It was the first to fly the 'hump' between India and China. It was the first to be attacked by B-29 fighter planes on that same 'hump' trip."

In last night's operations—that is, so far as the flying weather is concerned—it was third. The way that it flew and the way that it bombed, will make it first for me forever.

We took off from a base in western China carrying a large load of bombs and gasoline. We arrived at the target at exactly 11:09 p. m. It was at that moment that our bombs plunged downward toward their Japanese marks.

The two minutes that preceded it, however, were—as we say in the air force—rugged.

In the first place, the alarm had already been given by the first two planes. The searchlight batteries were full on. The enemy aircraft was blazing below. And even before we got near the target area, we had to weave and dodge our way in. It wasn't too bad at first, but it got steadily worse as we flew steadily eastward toward the fine target of the Imperial Steel and Iron Works of Yawata. Flak began to spray the ship. The weaving searchlights picked us up time and again, only to lose us almost immediately. And then it happened!

One field battery caught us in its huge, savage ack-ack. From that time on until we outran the beacons, the whole cabin was lit up like Madison Square Garden on hockey night. A whine and a sputter on the nose told of a bullet-hit; a dull thud on the right wing was a piece of shrapnel, as we found out later. We just turned and turned. . . . those faithful engines kept right on going without one moment's hesitation.

Absence of Night Fighters. One of the strange things which we encountered over the target, as so many other planes did, was the absence of Jap night fighters. We didn't see a single one, and our gunners were disappointed, to say the least. We thought once in the excitement that we saw something that looked like a fighter, but we never could place it. And all this time—which were seconds, comparatively, but hours proportionately, the ack-ack was booming and the searchlights were poking their long noses into the ship. Some of the other crews were not so lucky.

As the long lines of B-29s began to string out, the Japs had more time to organize their supply defenses. The enemy pilots got their ships into the combat area and the fight was on!

Just since I've come back to Chungking for these broadcasts, one of my friends has asked me to describe an aerial fight between a B-29 and the Jap bomber. Well, the answer is there is no such thing—because it just can't happen. There are cases on record where a Jap pilot dove at a B-29 which he saw only a moment before him, and when he pulled up he didn't know it wasn't there.

That's just a small recommendation of the speed with which these huge bombers can battle.

It didn't always work that way last night, and some crews had a lot of fun sniping away from their various positions while the Japs sought to force the dragon-fly's tough hide like a mouse poking at an elephant.

There were a couple of smart guys in my ship. For example, the one who came on the interphone just as we were entering the target run with, "Hey chief, let's get out of here. Somebody's liable to get hurt!"

And the boy who was asked in the midst of the excitement over the same interphone, "Hey, Al, are you a cloud-hopper yet?"

And Al's reply: "Well, not that I know of."

All this was going on while the deadly business of bombing the Jap target was being prosecuted. The bombardier was at his sights, the navigator was working to set the course right and the two pilots were waving and dodging. They did a magnificent job. And for some it was their first combat mission. But the Twentieth Bomber Command, because of the value in dollars of its ships and the value in tactics of its operations, specializes in good crews.

We only stayed for about 10 minutes over that outer defense, but it seemed 10 times that long. We entered the bomb-run as the Japs themselves still played on the planes. There were no half-measures in that combat last night. We had to kill and destroy or be killed and destroyed. The bombs went down toward their great targets smashing into the heart of the Japanese steel industry. And then it was that one of the crew members gave me a kick and said, "Gosh, isn't it pretty down there?"

Well, loaded down with a parachute and Mae West life-preserver and a flak suit and helmet to protect me from flying fragments, I was not especially interested in the scenery, but more on those sharp flashes being poured at us. . . . wholesale, not retail.

When the bombs had dropped on the target, seconds that had seemed hours before then became days in proportion of length. The ship pointed her nose upwards. But still the searchlights held on. There were some remarks made in the cabin of that plane last night that expressed exactly the idea of the moment. But that moment is past.

Still the lights flared, and yet we could not avoid them. We climbed a bit, dropped a bit, and all this time, cold steel was spluttering against the outside of the cabin.

And then suddenly, as if nothing at all had happened, the pilot leaned back and said: "We're very well out of that."

And as he spoke, the lights died away. The plane had picked up speed and we soared away into the darkness, toward the west, towards China and towards safety.

Crew Breaks Into Song. For a few moments there was silence over the inter-com, and then almost without a signal at all, there were 11 husky voices raised in that familiar song of the Air Corps.

You may have heard it sung, as I have, by marching cadets, by young officers just commissioned, but never in such a situation could you hear it sung with the vitality and spirit of the rightful aggressor, with the joy of having been in the very shadow of those who don't come back, but did, somehow. It was not triumphant, it was not victorious; it was just a young American lad who was singing because he had fought a battle and won, because he had dared his life and come through. A quick switch to the interphone. "Hey, Joe . . . see that fire?"

"Yeah, sure, I'll bet that's one you started."

"We were just about there, weren't we?"

"Naw, you're seeing things; we was way over there."

"O. K. wise guy."

And then the bantering stopped. After the long flight back to base, there was the usual questioning of the crew members—what they'd seen, what they'd done under certain circumstances, and what their reactions were to the enemy opposition.

Here again another divergence of opinion resulted, another difference in experience was shown. Some of them had encountered only flaky others had come up against the night fighters. The two events were, to their minds, entirely different. But it still added up to the same thing—that you can't fight a one-sided war even with B-29 dragonflies.

There was little bad news from all those returning. Nothing like what might have been expected from a mission such as this one.

The final result was almost fantastic as the reports began to pour in from the bases. This plane came in perhaps with one rudder missing and that plane came in with a huge hole in one wing, but flying proudly, although somewhat disabled perhaps. And nearly all got back and their crews with them.

There are no really spectacular stories that I heard about last night's operations. There were no great explosions, there was no prolific concentration of enemy power against our aerial invasion of Japan. And yet deep in the heart of every American crew there remained a remembrance of what happened to those Doc-little flyers, the men who first crossed the coast of Japan in their attack on Tokyo.

These, the crews last night, were the avengers not only of Pearl Harbor, but of Jimmie Doolittle's men.

So far I have not mentioned any names of the crew of my ship, because I wanted to talk about them as a team first. However, their friends at home will be glad to know that they all came back and perhaps they'll be glad to know that they brought me with them. They included Maj. Charles Hampton of Klamath Falls, Ore., Lt. Carol Hanghaugh of Millersburg, Pa., Capt. Stephen Silverman of Boston, Lt. Roy Purcell of Tampa, Fla., Tech. Sgt. Corey of Chicago, Sgt. Leabato of Pittsburgh, Pa., Sgt. Virgil Belford of Beaumont, Tex., Sgt. Edward Roar of Colorado, Sgt. James Bracken of Bridgeport, Conn., and Sgt. Harold Glennon of Fort Worth, Tex.

They did a good job. And we hope it is only the beginning of such a series of blows.

B-29 WINGFLAPS HELP IN QUICK TAKE-OFF, SLOW LANDING SPEED

Engineering Problem Solved by Ability to Add 19 Pct. to Wing
Area — Tricycle-Type Landing Wheels.

By RICHARD G. BAUMHOFF
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WICHITA, Kan., June 16.—Design and operation of the wing and wingflaps of the giant Boeing B-29 Superfortress constitute one of the outstanding engineering features of this new plane, which bombed Japan yesterday.

This wing, called the "117 airfoil," was planned to meet the demand for a bomber that would fly faster, higher and farther, with a bigger bomb load, than any other in existence. With it and its flaps, the Superfortress is able to land at the same speed—about 100 miles an hour—as the famed Flying Fortress, its smaller prototype.

During the experimental period the Army feared the heavy loading of the wing would have an adverse effect on handling characteristics in take-off and landing and would lower the ceiling attainable. The flaps, it was shown, counteracted any such tendencies.

Wing Area Increased.
A large section of the trailing, or back, edge of each side of the wing consists of a flap, moving in or out under power, through the action of screws. Fully extended, the flaps increase wing area by 19 per cent. The practice is to extend them 25 degrees at take-off, so that they resemble long, horizontal scoops that are rolled down and back. In this way the speed and distance of a take-off is reduced markedly.

In contrast to the Flying Fortress wing, which has a tubular spar, the B-29's wing is of web-type construction, centered about a finely machined duralumin chord. This chord, or shaped bar, weighs 255 pounds and is the largest of its type of manufacture ever used in a regularly produced plane. Boeing lists other features of the wing as follows: Unusually slender shape; decreased drag per pound of lift; greater strength of primary structure; greater space for gasoline tanks; better stall warning; and more gradual stalling characteristics.

Wing's Record Load.
The wing carries a greater load in fuel and bombs than any other wing ever built, while the flaps are the largest ever installed on a plane built in quantity. Another superlative, as announced by Boeing, is that the wing has more "aerodynamic refinement" than ever before achieved in a structure of its type and magnitude and is "cleaner aerodynamically" than that of the Flying Fortress, that is, more streamlined.

The landing gear is completely retractable within streamlined doors, virtually all of the myriad rivets are driven flush with the aluminum alloy skin, and the turbo-superchargers, drains, vents, air intakes, and big rubber de-icer boots are flush with the main surfaces.

Nacelles, or housings, for the four 2200-horsepower Wright engines are of a special design for reduction of wind resistance and to a considerable extent the plane's speed and other performance is attributed to this factor.

Tricycle Landing Gear.
When the landing gear is lowered for use, the "drag" of the Superfortress, or resistance to passage through the air, is doubled. Unlike many planes, which make three-point landings on forward wheels and tail, the Superfortress has a tricycle landing gear, settling on 56-inch main wheels at the center, equipped with dual tires, then resting on a 36-inch dual nose wheel, the latter unique in aircraft usage.

The center of gravity is a few inches ahead of the main wheels. One of the ticklish problems was to design the main wheels so that they would fit snugly in the inboard engine nacelles.

The big fin, rudder and stabilizer assembly, constituting the tail, are meant to hold down the plane in flight, rather than to help in the landing.

Four-Blade Propellers.
Propellers, which are four-blade Hamilton standards, 16½ feet in diameter and the largest now in use, operate through specially designed reduction gears, which furnish the lowest ratio of propeller speed to engine speed ever used on any airplane, according to Boeing. The propellers revolve at only 35 per cent of the speed of the engine shafts.

"This great reduction was necessary," said the manufacturer's description, "because it was essential, for aerodynamic reasons, to keep the speed of the propeller tips below the speed of sound, and to utilize the maximum power of the engines. Operating through these gears, the propellers turn slower than those of any other airplane, but the speed of the propeller tips, because of their great diameter, compares with the speed of tips of propellers on other airplanes."

It was necessary to design twin turbo-superchargers, "which allow the engines to breathe sea-level air at high altitudes," because no single one had sufficient capacity for the big 18-cylinder radial engine. The superchargers are operated by the exhaust of the engines.

Shape of Bomb Bay Changed.
Original design of the bomb bay was changed to increase its length, and that of the intake funnels, by 27 inches, so that as great a weight in small bombs could be loaded as in large bombs.

"The B-29," said Boeing, "is the nearest any airplane has yet approached to being all-electrically operated. Every piece of equipment on the bomber that moves is activated either by an electric motor or cables, with the exception of the braking system; it alone is hydraulic."

In a test flight at Wichita there was a threat of a serious engine fire, but the pilot landed safely. The crew scrambled to the ground through the escape hatches in a matter of seconds, which was taken as an effective demonstration of what could be done if necessary to abandon the plane by parachute as a result of combat damage.

ANOTHER SLATTERY

AID'S JOB ABOLISHED

Acting Administrator Notifies Confidential Assistant to REA Head.

Another development in the controversy between Administrator Harry E. Slattery of the Rural Electrification Administration and Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard was disclosed today when C. Angus Burns, Slattery's confidential assistant, received a letter informing him his position was to be abolished July 1.

Acting Administrator William J. Neal, who signed the letter, said the elimination of Burns' position was "routine action." He added, "We are constantly making changes to meet budget requirements and demands. We do not dismiss personnel," he said, "we abolish positions."

Burns declined to discuss the dispute, saying regulations of the department prohibited employees from engaging in public controversy. The Post-Dispatch learned, however, that Burns was appointed by Slattery and has stated to friends that he is a "Slattery man."

A week ago the position of Dr. Jack Levin, consultant to Slattery, was abolished. He refused to accept dismissal and continued to report to work after his telephone and office records had been removed. Slattery then placed Dr. Levin in a private suite to carry on his work.

POSTWAR ROAD PLAN ASSAILED AT CITIZENS' FORUM

Iowan Criticises Proposed Speed of 75 Miles an Hour for National System.

Criticism of some phases of the proposed postwar plan for a nationwide system of inter-regional highways was expressed today at a round table discussion at the citizens' conference on postwar planning at Hotel Statler. Final sessions of the three-day conference, sponsored by the American Planning and Civic Association, were held today.

Philip H. Elwood, head of the department of landscape architecture at Iowa State College, who presided, said that while he was "all for it," it was in some respects a "crime to slice up the country with super-duper highways."

"A previous speaker said that travel on these highways would not be less than 75 miles per hour. What fun is it to drive 75 miles an hour?" he asked. The people discovered the American landscape for the first time when gasoline rationing came in."

Robert Kingery, director of the Chicago Regional Planning Association, said he agreed to some extent with Elwood in the matter of speed. He asserted that only when mechanical safety devices are developed "should we put a 30-mile mentality behind a 90-mile-an-hour machine."

Elwood termed "a unique and pioneering study which will be an object lesson to other areas in the country." The study of the Meramec River watershed which has been in progress for the last four years.

Hugh Denney, a member of the staff of the Missouri Resources and Development Department, and L. T. Rode, director of the Missouri Conservation Commission, gave details of the study, which is expected to evaluate the economic and recreational possibilities of the 4000-square-mile area.

At a later formal session Dr. Karl Brandt, a former professor of agriculture at the University of Berlin and now teaching at Stanford (Cal.) University, said European farmers are enjoying a fair level of prosperity at present, even under the tyranny of the Nazis.

He said that much of the war damage to fields and herds has been repaired except in an area in Russia between the Eastern Front and Stalingrad, and that large-scale agricultural planning was being widely used, especially in France, where organization of markets is being tried for the first time. This is under the direction of Frenchmen, not Germans, he added.

Other speakers scheduled today included Newton B. Drury, Chicago, director of the National Park Service; Tom Wallace, editor of the Louisville (Ky.) Times, and Louis Bromfield, novelist.

Drury spent yesterday afternoon with Luther Ely Smith, chairman of the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial Association, and others, familiarizing himself with details of the proposal to construct an airplane landing strip in the riverfront area. The memorial is under the jurisdiction of the park service, which operates under the Department of the Interior.

At yesterday's late session of the conference, at Hotel Statler, Guy Greer, a member of the editorial board of Fortune Magazine, described a "dream city" of the future and listed factors he considered necessary for its realization.

"The three main phases involved in making this dream come true," he said, "are bringing the decentralization movement under public control, bringing up to date the 'in-town' pattern of the community and improving and coordinating all forms of transportation and terminals."

DRIVER WHO HIT FOUR CHARGED WITH CRIMINAL CARELESSNESS

A coroner's jury today returned a verdict of criminal carelessness naming Elmer Julian Landman, 1810 South Twelfth street, as the driver of the automobile which struck four persons on South Broadway Wednesday night, killing a 3-year-old girl, and critically injuring her mother and the mother's 14-year-old brother.

The Circuit Attorney's office said the evidence would be presented to a grand jury when the outcome of the trial was known. Mrs. Charles Lee, 1441 South Third street, and the youth, Arthur Beardsley, 1529A South Broadway, become known. The child killed was Regan Jean Lee. Her 8-month-old sister, Sandra, was knocked 20 feet in the collision, but was not injured.

Three witnesses testified at the inquest that Landman was driving without lights and on the wrong side of the street.

USE OF NAZI WAR PRISONERS AT BARRACKS CRITICISED

A resolution protesting against employment of German prisoners of war at Jefferson Barracks was adopted by unanimous vote last night at a meeting of Carondelet Township Post 162, American Legion, at 9303 South Broadway.

Passage of the resolution was the result of a report that prisoners had replaced some civilian employees, an officer of the post said today.

In Washington today, the War Department said it had been unable to find any evidence confirming reports that 45 civilian employees had been discharged and had been replaced by prison labor. An Army spokesman said the prisoners were employed in the laundry and in doing odd jobs such as cutting grass, building fences and cleaning the grounds.

ALDERMEN ORDER AUGUST VOTE ON CITY BOND ISSUE

Board Approves 53 Measures, Including Airport Expansion and Adjourns for Summer.

The Board of Aldermen today passed an ordinance authorizing submission of the $43,527,000 bond issue proposed for a postwar public works program. The vote was unanimous.

This was one of 53 measures passed by the board at its final meeting before adjourning for the summer vacation. The board will reconvene Sept. 22.

Among the measures passed were several ordinances authorizing purchase or condemnation of property adjacent to Lambert-St. Louis Field to expand airport facilities there.

One bill appropriated $7000 for band concerts. Another appropriated $10,000 for improving and equipping several new playgrounds.

Many parking ordinances were included, in addition to bills authorizing the city to sell real estate.

The aldermen also adopted a resolution introduced by Alderman Charles Albanese calling for strict enforcement of the ordinance providing for removal of weeds from all property in the city.

TRAINMEN THREATEN STRIKE UNLESS DEMAND IS MET

A dispute over starting time of trainmen in the employ of the Alton & Southern railroad has been submitted to the National Railway Mediation Board following a vote taken by the trainmen to strike unless the issue is settled by Monday, the Post-Dispatch learned today.

The 125 trainmen, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, voted, 116 to 9, to stop work if the company fails to put into effect the starting time rule applying to all other railroads in the country. The Alton & Southern switches all freight cars in the St. Louis area from one through rail road to another and also maintains the spurs of many vital war plants here.

James Davies, president of the railroad, said the company had not violated the starting time rule, inasmuch as since 1937 the contract with the union has contained a note asserting that the local general committee and the management could deviate from the rule on written agreement.

BODY OF 10-YEAR-OLD GIRL FOUND ON FARM NEAR BOSTON

SCITUATE, Mass., June 16 (AP).—The body of Frances McGrath, 10 years old, daughter of a former Boston City Council member, missing since Saturday, was found on a Norwell farm today, about six miles from the family's summer home.

Police said that the child obviously had been criminally attacked. The child disappeared shortly after going to confession in St. Mary's Church. She was last seen in a bowling alley in the center of the town. Hundreds of police and volunteers, including State Guards, had been seeking her.

GASOLINE RATIONS NOT TO BE CHANGED IN NEXT 3 MONTHS

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—There is no hope for any expansion of civilian gasoline allotments "in the near future," the Office of Price Administration said today in announcing that automobile fuel rations will remain at present levels for the third quarter of the year.

Gasoline consumption for the country as a whole was running about equal to quotas, the agency said, but in the East allocations have been exceeded by a considerable margin.

ROOSEVELT IS SAID TO WANT WALLACE ON TICKET AGAIN

President Quoted as Planning No Move to Seek Renomination; 'Henry Is My Choice' for Running Mate.

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—The Herald Tribune quoted "high Democratic political sources" last night as reporting President Roosevelt had told National Democratic Chairman Robert Hannegan that Henry A. Wallace still was his choice for vice-presidential nominee.

The Herald Tribune, in a Washington dispatch quoted a reported conversation between the President and Hannegan in which Roosevelt also said he would make no move to seek renomination. Hannegan talked to Roosevelt for 45 minutes Wednesday.

Hannegan was told, the paper said, that the President believed "we stand to gain nothing" if the nomination for Vice-President went to anyone but Wallace. "Henry is my choice," Roosevelt was said to have added.

Later in the conversation, when he was questioned about his own plans, the President was reported to have told Hannegan: "I do not plan to make any move to obtain the nomination. It will be something the delegates will have to decide."

The Herald Tribune story said the President's expressed preference for Wallace came when Hannegan told him that although "support for you among party leaders is just about unanimous, nearly everybody is dead set against Wallace on the ticket. This is particularly true in the South and Middle West."

The President was reported to have replied: "Well, Bob, I've wanted it to be anybody's race right along. I've been asked about it a lot of times. Of course, and told everybody to go ahead and see what they could do. But I had a talk with Henry about the situation before he left."

Alderman Edward L. Duke, whose sporadic residence in the Twenty-third Ward has been under inquiry by a special committee of the Board of Aldermen, appeared before the committee today and assured members he would be present at future meetings of the board, with the result that the committee decided to take no action at present.

The committee, which had intended to file a report finding Duke was not a resident of the ward, reported instead that he had given assurances he would discharge fully his duties as an alderman when the board reconvenes after the summer recess. "Under these circumstances," the report stated, "the committee felt it should not conclude its investigation or make a final report at this time, but should remain in existence and keep in constant touch with the situation as it may develop after the board reconvenes in September, and then take such further action as may seem proper."

14 AGREE TO END STRIKE AFTER BIG FOUNDRY CLOSES

E. St. Louis Workers who Made 1300 Idle
Accept Penalty of Two Days' Pay.

Chippers at the American Steel Foundries, East St. Louis, today voted to return to work Monday after 14 of them staged an unauthorized strike which caused the management to shut down the plant. Because of the shutdown, which began last night, 1300 other employees were thrown out of work.

The chippers, members of CIO United Steel Workers of America, stopped work Tuesday over a wage disagreement. They returned to work yesterday, but walked off their jobs again when informed by the company they would lose pay for the two days they did not work.

The company, which makes vital needed railway equipment, shut down the plant lest the chippers induce other employees to go on strike.

Clyde Huffstutler, subregional director of the steel workers' union, told a Post-Dispatch reporter that "he was sick and tired of wildcat strikes" and that the 14 chippers should be penalized if necessary. The 200 chippers who attended a meeting this afternoon at which the men agreed to return Monday, accepted a company demand that the 14 strikers lose two days' pay.

A strike of 22 machinists at the company's Granite City plant last week over company refusal to meet a WLB directive for bonus pay threw 2500 other workers out of jobs and temporarily halted production of armor for the fighting forces.

DEATH FOR NEO-FASCIST ARMY MEN WHO MISS ROLL CALL

The Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch Special Cable Copyright, 1944.
BERN, June 16.—Benito Mussolini has decreed the death sentence for any soldier of the neo-fascist army who fails to present himself at a single roll call.

The measure, news of which has just been received here, is due to the fact that Italian Republican soldiers are deserting en masse, it is said.

stiff counterattacks by Japanese tanks.

"In general, fighting is heavy but good progress is being made against well organized defenses," Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced last night in his second communique on the operation. He first announced the invasion, but supplied no confirmation of a Tokyo radio report that an attempt also had been made to invade nearby Tinian.

Battleships and cruisers, opening up with their guns after carrier planes knocked out Japan's southern Marianas air force Saturday and Sunday, silenced most of the Saipan coastal batteries and antiaircraft positions.

"Initial reports indicate our casualties are moderate," Adm. Nimitz said. Tokyo radio claimed, without confirmation, that the invaders suffered 1800 casualties and lost 40 landing barges.

Saipan is relatively flat, adaptable for large airfields, but the same flatness prompted the invasion commander, V. Adm. Richmond Kelly Turner, to expect opposition for the first time in the Pacific amphibious campaigns by mobile artillery. He warned that the quick victories won in the Marshalls may not be duplicated at Saipan.

William L. Worden, Associated Press correspondent who accompanied the expeditionary force, said Turner described the huge force of men and ships "as the most experienced amphibious war fleet in the world."

TRUK HARD HIT; JAP BASE RAIDED

ADVANCED ALLIED HEAD-QUARTERS, NEW GUINEA, June 16 (AP).—A two-day 186-ton bombing raid on Truk—heaviest assault by land-based planes on that naval base—and the first land-based attack on Yap were reported today by headquarters.

Liberators opened the assault on Yap in a day and night attack Tuesday, an apparent prelude to the landings in the Marianas. Yap, a former major cable station, is less than 600 miles southwest of Guam. It is a heavily-fortified sea-plane and landplane base, approximately 930 nautical miles northwest of the Admiralties.

Large fires were started during the attack, aimed at the airdrome. Yap was raided March 30 by carrier-based planes.

No further progress was reported in stalemated land fighting on Blak Island, in the Schouten group off northern Dutch New Guinea. American forces hold Mokmer airstrip, already in service, but have been halted in their advance toward two other airfields.

TURKEY BARS DARDANELLES PASSAGE TO ARMED SHIPS

ANKARA, June 16 (AP).—Turkey has given assurance that it will no longer permit armed vessels to pass through the Dardanelles.

Premier Sukru Saracoglu, who became Foreign Minister yesterday succeeding Numan Menemencloglu, told foreign press representatives that the "night and right" of Turkey would not be used "against her ally, Great Britain, and her friends, Russia and the United States."

Menemencloglu, foreign minister for two years, resigned after the British protested against passage of German armed vessels between the Black and Aegean Seas, and the Turkish cabinet held a meeting at which Menemencloglu's policies were disapproved.

DIASONE REPORTED UNSAFE AS CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP).—Diasone, a drug related to sulfas, recently publicized as a possible cure for tuberculosis, was declared unsafe in a report to the American Medical Association today.

Diasone has had good results on guinea-pig tuberculosis. But in today's report Drs. H. J. Corper and Maurice L. Cohn of the National Jewish Hospital, Denver, said their experiments showed the diasone effect on the pig disease resulted from its ability to cause an oxygen deficiency. It virtually asphyxiates the germs. The guinea-pigs stand this but they said it is probably risky in human beings.

Dr. Roger I. Lee of Boston was chosen president-elect of the medical association. He takes office one year from now.

ANOTHER MOVE TO END 9-PLANT STOVE STRIKE

Union Meeting to Be Held in Belleville Monday, Business Agent Says.

A meeting of striking Belleville stove workers will be held Monday morning at Moose Hall, Belleville, to renew attempts to get the 600 men back to work at the nine strike-bound plants, Edward Wolter, business agent of the strikers' union, said today.

Wolter said he conferred yesterday with Earl Marks of Cincinnati, international vice-president of the AFL International Molders' and Foundry Workers' Union, who suggested another membership meeting to reconsider the strike action of last Monday. The strikers belong to the union's Local 182.

The strikers failed to report for work last Monday because a War Labor Board panel in Detroit rejected a request for wage increases submitted jointly by the union and representatives of the nine stove company managements. Other workers in the same plants, members of another local of the same international union, were granted wage increases by a WLB panel in Chicago.

Repeated pleas by international officers of the union and orders from the WLB to return to work while the WLB in Washington considers their grievance have been ignored by the strikers.

COTTON BELT LINE PLANS TO PAY $3,906,175 ON BONDS

The Cotton Belt Railroad filed in United States District Court today a petition seeking authorization to pay back and current interest on three bond issues in the amount of $3,906,175. Judge George H. Moore set June 30 for a hearing.

The petition seeks permission to pay $400,000, representing the interest due Jan. 1 and July 1 of this year on Gold Income Bond Certificates, a second mortgage. If the payment is allowed, this will be the first time that interest payments on this issue have been current in the eight years the road has been in reorganization.

The railroad requests authorization to pay $3,501,000 for interest due from Jan. 1, 1941 to Jan. 1, 1944, a total of seven payments, on First Terminal and Unifying Bonds, a third mortgage. The other issue involved is the General and Refunding Mortgage Bond issue, a fourth lien. These payments for interest due July 1, 1937 and July 1 and Jan. 1, 1938, are in the amount of $5175.

AMERICAN TROOPS DRIVE ON TOWARD CHERBOURG ROAD

ed the worst weather since D-day with a 20-mile-an-hour northwest wind blowing onto the beaches—the only place the Allies now hold for the reinforcement and supply of their invasion armies.

The United States battleships Texas and Nevada and the cruiser Augusta were reported arching their shells deep inland to support the American troops driving across the peninsula.

A few miles south of the American spearhead pointed at St. Sauveur was another column pushing toward La Haye du Puits, a road junction controlling all the remaining roads leading into Cherbourg. The Americans were last reported about six miles from this objective.

300,000 Nazis In Action.
A late dispatch from Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's advanced command post said it was estimated 300,000 German soldiers had been thrown against the Normandy beachhead.

This dispatch said four German divisions had been badly mauled in battle, including the 709th, 711th and 352d.

The Germans acknowledged continued reverses on the American right flank and reported their engineers had wrecked the canal locks at Caen—an implication that they feared Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery may soon crack the stiff left hinge of the line.

Roads Littered With Dead.
Don Whitehead, Associated Press correspondent, said in a late dispatch that the toughest and bitterest fighting of any on the entire American front, continues in the Carentan sector.

The roads are littered with German dead, mowed down by the withering fire from tanks, he wrote. At least 500 dead Nazis are piled up on the ditches and hedgerows where SS troops and parachute troops fought fanatically in a mad effort to break through between two beachheads two days ago.

Whitehead said as the Germans advanced along the hedgerows and under cover of bushes American tanks ran up and "gave 'em the garden hose"—sprayed the area with more than 60,000 rounds of .30 caliber machine-gun bullets.

"The Krauts fell from trees and out of the hedges like flies," said Capt. Harry Vold, Cleveland Heights, O.

Time after time the tanks charged, crushing Nazis under their steel treads.

Nazis Send In Reserves.
Alive to the vital necessity of holding St. Sauveur and Le Haye du Puits, the Germans rushed reserves into the battle and vigorous, fluid fighting was in progress.

West of the newly captured coastal village of Quineville, on the extreme right wing of the 100-mile beachhead front, American forces advanced a mile or more to reach the Senape River.

Headquarters said the capture of Quineville gave the Allies "a valuable new outlet from the beaches."

Reports were obscure on a new American thrust between the Elbe and Vire rivers southeast of Carentan which might be pointed toward St. Jean de Daye on the St. Lo-Carentan highway. It appeared that the Americans had worked their way about five miles west of Lisson, which is 11 miles inland. Lisson was captured last week.

The Germans said American Negro troops were attacking "three miles south of Lisson," supported by parachutists across the Elbe River.

This morning's Allied communiqué, issued before headquarters announced verbally the new American gains toward St. Sauveur, said there were no major changes on any sector.

Generals In Combat.
Field dispatches said mobile fighting in the spearheads of the American sector found generals in the front line with their troops, tossing hand grenades and firing rifles side by side with privates.

American columns pushing forward sometimes were cut off and had to fight their way back into contact with the main forces.

In the area of Carentan, key point in the line, the Americans had fought their way across districts flooded by the Germans and were on firm land in the area of the village of Baupré. The Germans themselves admitted the Americans were at Pretot, three miles beyond Baupré and barely six miles from La Haye du Puits. Here the enemy launched stiff armored counterattacks. The German-controlled Paris radio declared German counterattacks had brought them back to the "walls of Carentan," but there was no Allied confirmation of this.

Confidence that the bridgehead was now secure was voiced officially at Allied headquarters. "We now are entering the buildup phase," it was explained.

Nazis Keep Off Balance.
A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Roger Greene, who is with the British forces in France, said Field Marshal von Rundstedt was moving up his heavy armor, but that so far he had succeeded only in checking a series of small-scale Allies' thrusts and had been thrown off balance too repeatedly to be able to mount anything in the way of a major counterblow himself.

WEBSTER GROVES TO DEDICATE FLAG POLE TO SERVICE MEN

A flag-raising ceremony and a patriotic program dedicated to servicemen of the past and present will be held at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at Rose Acre Gardens, 605 South Elm avenue, Webster Groves, the home of Henry J. Wichman, Spanish-American war veteran who arranged the festivities to coincide with his sixty-ninth birthday.

A picnic of Webster Groves residents last Saturday at Forty Acres, community park across the street from Wichman's flower shop, inspired the florist to have a 60-foot flag pole erected this past week in his yard, one of the highest points in Webster Groves.

Wichman's fellow-members of the Webster Groves camp of the United States War Veterans will attend while Dr. Julius Walter, State commander, will make the acceptance speech for the flag and flag pole. The Webster Groves High School band will play for the flag-raising. Mayor Edwin Chapman will speak, followed by a talk by Mrs. Wichman to mothers of service men.

BIG BOMBERS HIT IN VIENNA AREA AND IN SLOVAKIA

Italy-Based Planes Strike at 5 Oil Refineries in Austria, Another at Bratislava.

ROME, June 16 (AP).—American heavy bombers based in Italy attacked five oil refineries in the Vienna area today, and another at Bratislava, 100 miles east of Vienna. Bratislava is the capital of the Nazi puppet Slovak government.

The German radio said anti-aircraft defenses brought down 22 bombers.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 16 (AP).—The Allied aerial offensive against continental targets swept on today after Royal Air Force heavy bombers made their second heavy high-altitude pre-dusk precision attack yesterday, dropping sixteen bombs on Nazi E-boats, R-boats and minesweepers at Boulogne.

As the aerial assault in support of the Normandy invasion rolled on this morning, the German radio reported hostile aircraft approaching the Austrian provinces of Carinthia and Styria.

British four-engine Lancasters with fighter escort, hit the French channel port of Boulogne first at 10:30 p. m. yesterday—just before dusk. The attack was similar to one the Lancasters made Wednesday evening on installations at Le Havre—a strike which reconnaissance indicated was very successful.

Other British heavy bombers, continuing the attack into the night, hit railway centers at Valenciennes and Lens and a fuel dump at Chateaufort. Fourteen bombers were missing from all these operations while Allied night intruder planes destroyed four enemy aircraft and damaged others over France. The British planes dropped 5000 tons of bombs during the night.

R. A. F. heavy bombers also sought out the ammunition dump in the Rennes forest, officially described as the enemy's most important in Western France.

British rocket fighters, fighter-bombers and fighters pounded nine Northern France railroad centers from Chartres in the Paris area to Granville on the west coast below the battle line in operations late yesterday and last night.

Then, moving in even closer to the Normandy fighting area, these planes attacked troops and tanks hidden in an orchard, observation posts and a radio station in the Caen area, an artillery concentration near St. Lo, a Panzer headquarters near the front and numerous Seine bridges, shipping and ferries.

American Ninth Air Force fighter-bombers hit rail yards at La Haye du Puits, tracks and trains near St. Lo, Vire and Domfront; highways at Domfront, Fiers and Rennes and German fuel and supply dumps, gun emplacements and radio installations all over the battle regions.

99 PCT. OF MEN TREATED FOR D-DAY WOUNDS SURVIVE

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, June 16 (AP).—D-day casualties were below what had been expected and planned for and less than 1 per cent of the American wounded who reached medical stations died, it was disclosed officially today.

The invasion medical service surpassed that available in the North African landings or in the first World War.

Extensive use was made of a new anesthetic, sodium pentathal, which is administered intravenously through an operation which is quicker acting and more pleasant than ether. This anesthetic, however, is unfeasible where abdominal relaxation is required.

The most frequent type of wound was from high explosive shell fragments in the arms and legs. In the World War, there was a big proportion of chest wounds because of more static fighting.

Gangrene from a gas-producing bacillus, which developed in about 3 per cent of the wounds in the last war and which was greatly feared, has been almost negligible in the Normandy operation, because of quick treatment.

SENATE-HOUSE COMMITTEE ORDERS POSTWAR TAX STUDY

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—An immediate study of postwar taxation was ordered yesterday by the joint Senate-House Committee on Internal Revenue.

While holding out no promise of any lowering of taxes until victory, Chairman Doughton (Dem.), North Carolina, of the House Ways and Means Committee said "we want to be ready" for speedy adjustments.

The committee, comprised of Democratic and Republican Senators and House members, issued its statement shortly after Representative Reed (Rep.), New York, chairman of a special Republican congressional committee on taxation, announced his group would hold public hearings on a postwar tax program "aimed at reducing the present tax burden by approximately one-half."

pleaded guilty to the charges in the warrant before United States Commissioner John A. Burke shortly after their arrest. Briedy and Gilbert were released on $2500 bonds. Hamm failed to make bond.

Wharton entered a plea of guilty before a United States Commissioner at Springfield, Ill., where he was taken because he is a resident of Illinois. His bond also was set at $2500. He will be returned to St. Louis tomorrow, Norris said, to post the bond.

Norris said the four men had made statements to F. B. I. agents admitting their parts in the scheme and implicating each other.

Agents of the F. B. I. said Briedy entered into an agreement with the others whereby he received $10 a week from them in return for illegally obtaining Pullman reservations. When drawing room, berth and sleeping room accommodations were placed on a Pullman diagram, 30 days in advance of train time, agents said, Briedy blocked off certain space for the spring company officers, placing fictitious names in the diagram. He then called one of the three men at the spring company, agents said, telling them of the space he had secured for them, it was charged.

This practice started about the middle of March, agents said, after Hamm, who was a railroad ticket seller prior to becoming a senior clerk at the spring company, had arranged for Wharton to meet Briedy at the Missouri Mule Tap Room, 1023 Locust street. The first $10 payment was made to Briedy at that time, agents said.

The agreement was that Wharton was to receive two bedrooms each Thursday and Friday on the Pennsylvania Railroad's St. Louis-an, traveling between Pittsburgh and St. Louis, the complaint charged.

Gilbert entered into a similar agreement with Briedy about a month later and he and Wharton made numerous payments to Briedy, it was alleged.

TENANTS OF FIVE BUILDINGS UNDER CITY ORDER TO VACATE

Notices have been sent by the Comptroller's office ordering tenants in five buildings occupied by 12 families in the 900 block of Brooklyn street and at Tenth and Mound streets to vacate within 30 days, but Arthur C. Meyers, Director of Streets and Sewers, said today there is no immediate necessity for the families to be moved. Meyers said he would ask Comptroller Louis Nolte if the period of grace could be extended.

The property was acquired by the city through condemnation proceedings for $23,891, to be used to link Ninth and Tenth streets with a cutoff to be called Hempstead street. Meyers said this was a postwar project and that no plans existed even for a temporary construction of the street.

DAUGHTER OF PRINCESS HELD FOR QUESTIONING IN ROME

ROME, June 16 (AP)—Bona de Seta, 22-year-old daughter of a Princess, whose whereabouts have been a mystery since her arrest at the home of an American-born Baroness, is in an apartment in Rome and is being held for questioning, a high Allied source said today. She is being held for interrogation in connection with questioning of members of her family in Southern Italy. She is the daughter of Princess Pignatelli, and a stepdaughter of Prince Valerio Pignatelli, both of whom are being detained in Naples.

"With the mother and stepfather under detention," the source said, "it was only natural that the daughter be taken into custody for questioning, but since she was in Rome it was impossible to make the arrest until Rome was occupied by Allied troops. The arrest was merely routine."

The young woman was taken into custody at the home of Baroness Josephine Pomeroy Marincola of Hopewell, N. J., and Washington, who said she had been untiring in her efforts to serve the Allied cause.

RED DRIVE OPENS BIG GAP IN 'NEW' MANNERHEIM LINE

Two-Thirds of Karelian Isthmus Captured by Russians in Advance Toward Viipuri.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—The broadcast Soviet communique tonight said the Russians had captured 100 more populated places on the Karelian Isthmus, including four railway stations. It said there were no changes on the rest of the front.

By EDDY GILMORE
MOSCOW, June 16 (AP).—The Russians have smashed their way through the Finns' "new Mannerheim line," one of the last barriers on the way to the port of Viipuri, and have a grip on two-thirds of the Karelian Isthmus, it was reported today.

Col. Gen. Leonid A. Govorov's forces have driven 25 miles in five days on a 50-mile front.

A dispatch said the new Mannerheim line was a tremendous fortification, with four lines of walls made of cone-shaped stone and antitank blocks also two yards high, before which lay an antitank mine field 20 yards wide. A big gap has been cut in this line, and in some places Soviet tanks and artillery, as well as infantry, are considerably beyond it, the dispatch reported.

Behind the tank blocks the Finns had built an elaborate system of trenches and dugouts, with steel and concrete platforms for antitank rifle, machine guns and mortars. A quarter-mile away from the trenches the Finns had three additional ranks of tank blocks built around steel shelters.

The Finns will be battling shortly to hold the Russians back from Viipuri itself. The Red Army is not underestimating the battle which it faces. The struggle for the second Mannerheim line is far harder than the fight for the first line, in which the surprise element aided the Soviets.

The Russians said prisoners told them construction of the new Mannerheim line "began on the day when Finnish representatives in Sweden raised the question of peace negotiations with us. On the very day that (Dr. Juho) Paasikivi took off for Moscow (Field Marshal) Mannerheim went to Kivnassa to inspect the line."

(Nat. A. Barrows, Chicago Daily News-Post-Dispatch correspondent in Stockholm, reported today that the Red Army advance on the Karelian Isthmus was increasing the courage of peace activists in Finland as they realized the ever-increasing seriousness of their country's plight. Moreover, the Russians are still willing to discuss peace if the Finns will break with the Germans and President Risto Rytty will get rid of his collaborationist Cabinet and appoint a new one, Barrows wrote.

Finland's Finance Minister Vaino Tanner attempted to reopen peace talks with the Russians during his visit to Stockholm two weeks ago. "Tanner is quoted as having asserted that Finland could get rid of the Germans any time it desired," Barrows said. "Doubtless the Russians heard of that statement—with obvious reactions."

GERMANS SEND PILOTLESS PLANES AGAINST BRITAIN

agency, claimed that "damage of the greatest extent was caused by the new German high explosives in London," and that "warehouses on the Thames are in flames and rail communications partly disrupted."

The German communique reported only "South England and the London area last night and this forenoon were covered with novel explosives of the heaviest caliber."

A special note broadcast after the communique of the high command said, "There is hardly one German who will not receive this news with greatest satisfaction. The feelings of hatred and a burning wish for retaliation which dominate the German people have been kindled by our enemies in their terror crimes."

The British Ministry of Home Security ordered civilians to stay away from the pilotless aircraft, which explode five to 15 seconds after landing.

"Really Midget Planes." One correspondent telephoned this word picture of the pilotless craft:

"The planes have a distinctive, rhythmic note, giving the effect of a pulsating, low throb. They are much smaller than a Spitfire but their appearance is much the same."

"They really are midget planes. At night they show a distinct yellow glow at the rear and in the light of searchlights streams of thick smoke can be seen being ejected from them."

"Many of them have been observed in daylight and on several occasions Royal Air Force fighters, with total disregard of danger, have dived into the ack ack fire around them in attempts to make a kill."

"The pilotless planes appeared to be painted dark brown or black," one eyewitness said, "and smoke issues from them in small thick puffs, attuned to the throb which can be heard."

From one place in Southern England came a report that during the night and again today various districts were automatically fired on by machine-guns.

As the day wore on alerts and all clear alternated over Southern England and guns cracked intermittently, but the nation's business went on without interruption.

Home Secretary's Report. Home Secretary Herbert S. Morrison made a statement to the House of Commons this morning on the German attack.

He said: "It has been known for some time that the enemy was making preparations for use of pilotless aircraft against this country."

"He has now started to use this much vaunted weapon. A small number of these missiles was used in the raids Tuesday morning and their fall was scattered over a wide area. A larger number was used last night and this morning."

"On the first occasion they caused a few casualties but the attack was light and damage on the whole was inconsiderable."

"Last night's attack was more serious and I have not as yet full particulars of the casualties and damage, nor of the number of pilotless aircraft destroyed before they could explode."

Countermeasures Applied. "The enemy's preparations have not, of course, passed unnoticed, and countermeasures have already been and will continue to be applied with full vigor. It is, however, probable that attacks will continue. Subject to experience, the usual siren warning will be given for such attacks."

"Meanwhile it is important not to give the enemy any information which would help him in directing his shooting by telling him where his missiles landed."

"It may be difficult to distinguish these attacks from ordinary air raids and therefore it has been decided that, for the present, information published about air raids in southern England—that is to say south of a line from the Wash to the Bristol Channel—will not give any indication where the air raid has taken place, beyond saying it has occurred in Southern England."

"While I thought it right to give the House at the earliest opportunity information about use of this new weapon by the enemy, available information does not suggest that exaggerated importance need be attached to the development."

Warns People to Take Cover. "All possible steps are of course being taken to frustrate the enemy's attempts to cause nuisance raids by means which do not imperil the lives of his pilots."

"Meanwhile the nation should carry on with its normal business. Further, as the raids by pilotless aircraft may occur during daylight when the streets are full of people, and antiaircraft guns will be used to shoot down the machines, I must impress on the public the importance of not exposing themselves unnecessarily to danger by remaining in the streets out of curiosity instead of taking to the nearest cover while the guns are firing."

"For the time being, at any rate, the guns will shoot, but that is liable to review as we go along in the light of experience and what is expedient."

range we have made with the press with a view to avoiding the enemy knowing where his pilotless aircraft have fallen.

"I am sure all members, in questions they may put down, or in supplementary questions and observations will themselves act up to the practice which we have asked the press to observe."

The attack by the Germans filled the first half of a warning Churchill made last Feb. 22, saying, "There is no doubt the Germans are preparing on the French shore new means of attack on this country either by pilotless aircraft or possibly rockets or both."

The Germans already have used in this war a radio-controlled glider-bomb, mainly against ships, guiding it visually by aircraft which released it at great height, usually several miles from the target.

Radio-controlled planes had been used by several nations before the war, mainly as targets for gunners. Their control was visual.

Anyone who knows can tell the REAL THING!

BEFORE the war, Calvert was the most called-for luxury whiskey in America.

We believe it still is . . . because scarcity has not altered the preference for "the real thing"—Calvert's true prewar quality.

In fact, many of our friends who sell and serve Calvert tell us—"Calvert continues to be the whiskey most often asked for by name."

Evidently, even in these days of whiskey shortage, it remains true that Clear Heads Choose Calvert. You may not always be able to get it . . . but it pays to keep asking for the best rather than the most plentiful whiskey.

Forecasts 6000 Airports in U. S. BOSTON, June 16 (AP).—A prediction that there would be 300,000 civilian planes and 6000 airports in the United States four years after the war ends was made today by Charles I. Stanton, Civil Aeronautics Administrator. At present, he said, there are 25,000 planes and 3000 airports in the United States.

TARGET OF RAID PRODUCED FIFTH OF JAPAN'S STEEL

sweating out the mission in his ward room with Maj. Gen. George B. Stratemeyer, second in command of Allied air forces in the Southeast Asia theater, when the first Superfortress flashed the code word, "Betty," meaning that the bombs were away, at 10:58 p. m., local time, or 3:58 p. m., Thursday, Greenwich mean time (10:58 a. m., Thursday, St. Louis wartime, or 12:58 a. m. Friday, Japanese time).

Said Stratemeyer, "Wolfe, congratulations! This is the start of the finish."

With Wolfe grounded by the War Department after receiving a place on a B-29, the ranking officer on the mission was Brig. Gen. La Verne G. (Blondie) Saunders, 41, Aberdeen, S. D., one of the Twentieth Command's wing commanders who has a distinguished record in Flying Fortress combat in the Southwest Pacific.

Attack Plan Modified. The plan of attack, somewhat modified in execution, was for the planes of the bomber groups to follow singly upon the course of two separate lead planes for each group. The lead planes carried picked crews.

One of the pair was to bomb from a low altitude and the other from the higher air, with the idea of doing maximum damage before the enemy was fully alert.

The planes dropped no flares. They counted, with great success, upon the glowing fires from the first bomb hit for the illumination of the target for the later planes.

Eight lead planes took off from various fields 10 minutes ahead of the main force. Takeoffs followed every few minutes. As twilight settled down the great planes were still lifting reluctantly from the fields with their heavy bomb loads.

Stratemeyer, Wolfe and Brig. Gen. John P. Upston of Texas City, Mich., Wolfe's assistant chief of staff for operations, watched the takeoffs from a clipboard control tower at the main bomber base.

Report on Bangkok Raid. A southeast Asia communique of June 8 called the earlier B-29 raid the "heaviest blow of the war" on Bangkok.

"Black smoke rose to great heights through the clouds as the bombers, despite bad weather, pressed home widespread attacks on railway shops and marshalling yards," the communique said that day.

"The city's defenses apparently were caught by surprise as the formations converging on the target at a great height from all angles dropped a record tonnage of demolition and incendiary bombs on this important Japanese port."

"Anti-aircraft fire was heavy but generally ineffective and only a few planes rose to intercept. These, however, failed to attack the mass formations."

Wife of Raider Thrilled at Use of "Betty"—Her Name.

WEIRTON, W. Va., June 16 (AP).—The "Betty" whose name flashed the code signal that meant the first "bombs away" in yesterday's raid on Japan was "thrilled beyond words" today.

"Did he really use my name for that?" the wife of Lt. Col. James Garcia, chief of the bomber command intelligence section asked.

"I'm so thrilled I can't talk," Garcia was in a Superfortress piloted by Lt. Col. Winton Close of Los Angeles, husband of Betty's sister, Jane. Mrs. Garcia said her husband left Salina, Kan., for China last April 4.

a model battalion air station where wounded flyers are given blood plasma and other medical aid.

Opening of the display tomorrow will be accompanied by a special program including entertainment by Buddy Ray and his orchestra from Forest Park Highlands; Gus Van, dialect expert, currently engaged at the Park Plaza Hotel; Jack Herbert, magician, now entertaining at Hotel Jefferson, and Betty Barr, singer. Bobby Meeker, former orchestra leader, will be master of ceremonies at the entertainment.

Most of the displayed equipment will be identified by signs, which will tell the cost of each piece in terms of war bonds. The exhibition, which will close June 25, will be open daily from 4 p. m. to midnight, except next Sunday, Saturday, June 24, and Sunday, June 25, when it will be open from 10 a. m. to midnight.

Boy Scouts, who started a house-to-house canvass of St. Louis and St. Louis County Monday evening, reported 9908 pledges for bonds in the amount of $1,427,431 last night. These figures place the Scouts ahead of the schedule they maintained in the Fourth War Loan Drive last fall, when, after five days of solicitation, their subscriptions totaled $1,400,000.

Corporate subscriptions reported to the War Finance Committee last night included Wohl Shoe Co., $500,000; Mines Equipment Co., $440,000; Stephens Machine Co.,

$50,000; Walsh Refractories Corporation, $25,000; Wetterau Grocer Co., $40,000; Diagraph Bradley Stencil Machine Co., $45,000; Hinrichs-Golterman Fuel & Material Co., $25,000, and St. Louis Malleable Casting Co., $155,000.

A war bond rally will be held tomorrow night in Maplewood.

Killed by Auto

JUDITH WILMSMEYER

EAST SIDE PASTOR, HURT IN WRECK, DIES

Injuries Fatal to the Rev. R. G. Pettis; Girl Killed by Auto.

Two deaths in the St. Louis area were reported yesterday as the result of automobile accidents, and a third person was seriously injured when struck by a street car. The Rev. Robert G. Pettis, pastor of Gospel Tabernacle, 1117 Pigott avenue, East St. Louis, died at the Christian Welfare Hospital there of internal injuries suffered Monday when his automobile turned over on the highway eight miles east of Salem, Ill. His wife, Mrs. Gertrude Pettis, suffered head injuries in the accident, but her condition was not serious. Two other occupants of the car were treated for minor injuries suffered in the accident which resulted from a tire blowout.

Judith Wilmsmeyer, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wilmsmeyer, 19 South Rita avenue, Bridgeton, St. Louis County, was killed when she was struck by an automobile in Mascoutah, Ill. Police reported that the child ran into the path of an automobile driven by Mrs. James Pappas, 300 North Eleventh street, Belleville, wife of a soldier stationed at Scott Field. The child was visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Kimberlin, of Mascoutah.

George Claus, a laborer, 2544 West University street, was injured yesterday when he was struck by a Page avenue street car while he was walking across Washington avenue and watching a fire in the Mendenhall Motor Co., 2315 Locust street, police reported. Claus, 67, suffered seven fractured ribs, a broken nose and head bruises. He was taken to City Hospital. The street car operator was Michael O'Shea, 4450 Cates avenue.

DARST CRITICISES BOND PROGRAM AS POORLY DRAFTED

Democratic Candidate for Mayor Asserts It Doesn't 'Resemble' a Master Plan.

The proposal for a $48,527,000 city bond issue for various improvements was attacked last night by Joseph M. Darst, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, chiefly on the ground that it did not constitute a long-range master plan for the city.

He made his attack before the Twenty-fourth Ward Democratic Organization at 5200 Shaw avenue, at a meeting also addressed by Patrick J. Burke, one of his opponents. The third Democratic candidate, James J. Fitzsimmons, was not present.

Darst, Director of Public Welfare from 1933 to 1941, said it was his duty to state his position before the voters acted and that the merits of the bond proposal should be discussed without partisan consideration. The two-thirds majority needed for adoption of a bond issue could not be obtained without the support of both parties and "every segment of our population," he added.

Darst declared himself in favor of a bond issue based on "a carefully conceived, progressive and comprehensive plan for the rehabilitation, beautification and improvement of our city," providing employment for returning veterans and enabling the city to take advantage of any possible Federal grants. The plan, he continued, should be comparable in scope and effectiveness to those under consideration in other metropolitan areas.

He asserted that the 11 bond propositions "do not, separately and collectively, remotely resemble the type and kind of progressive master plan that the citizens are entitled to have before being asked to approve any large bond issue," and that they do not constitute adequate metropolitan planning.

There would not be time before the Aug. 1 primary to obtain full public understanding of the proposal, he asserted, and this might jeopardize adoption of the propositions and discourage proper planning and submission of future bond issues. He also opposed voting on the proposal in the primary because of the expected participation of a relatively small volume of voters and because of the important political contests then.

He promised to present a program of postwar development during his campaign. There was a loud demonstration for Burke as he was introduced, led by a group who were strangers to some of the Twenty-fourth Ward workers. He spoke briefly, preceding Darst, saying that many things of importance could be done for the benefit of business men and St. Louisans generally, but he did not go into details and did not comment on the bond issue.

The most important thing, Burke asserted, was to see that St. Louis was made a decent place to live for the men now in the armed forces, and he pledged efforts to provide postwar work for them. He asked the audience to "scrutinize the candidate and examine your consciences and see if I possess the capability of leading St. Louis in the office of Mayor." This brought cheers and applause.

He concluded, in another noisy demonstration, with a pledge to surround himself at City Hall with capable persons and not to be the representative of any individual, group or special interest. Burke is a business agent of the AFL Milk Wagon Drivers and Inside Dairy Workers' Union.

400 Dolls To Be Displayed.
 Miss Lillian Strupp of University City, will display part of her international collection of 400 dolls at the University City Public Library tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. ENDS 5-YEAR SIEGE OF CONSTIPATION!

"Now as Regular as Anyone!"
 Says H. C. Durand

Here's a sincere, unsolicited letter every disappointed "doser" will want to read:

"I'm 32 years old, and have been constipated over 5 years, as much as 5 days without a movement. Pills and laxatives would relieve me only for the day I took them. Next day I'd be as bad as ever. Then I tried KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN. An hour on my second box, and as much as anyone could want, thanks to regular use of your wonderful product!"
 Mr. H. C. Durand, 221 N. Columbus Ave., Freeport, Long Island, N. Y.

Sounds like "magic," doesn't it? Yes, KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN really does, and does, get at a common cause of constipation—lack of certain dietary "cellulose" elements! That's because it is one of Nature's most effective sources of these elements—which help the friendly colonic flora fluff up and prepare the colonic wastes for easy, natural elimination. KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN is not a purgative! Doesn't work by "sweeping out!" It is simply a gentle-acting, "regulating" food!

If your constipation is of this type, eat KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN or several ALL-BRAN muffins daily. Drink plenty of water. See if you don't find welcome relief! Insist on genuine ALL-BRAN, made only by Kellogg's in Battle Creek.

M'KITTRICK HERE, ASSAILS CLARK AS AN ISOLATIONIST

Links Opponent in Senate Race With Republicans in Opposition to Preparedness.

A sharp attack on United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark as an isolationist and an obstructor of preparedness for the war was delivered last night by his opponent for the Democratic nomination for the Senate, Attorney General Roy McKittrick.

The address, before the Twenty-fourth Ward Regular Democratic Organization at Big Club Hall, 5200 Shaw avenue, was McKittrick's reply to Clark's speech at Booneville Tuesday, in which Clark pledged support to President Roosevelt's war policies, and to the assertion by Senator Harry S. Truman, published last Sunday, that the President would like to have Clark re-elected.

It was made clear that McKittrick, who will speak at Booneville tomorrow, will follow the line of labeling Clark an opponent of international co-operation and an erstwhile foe of the President. His denunciations last night were enthusiastically received by an audience of 200 or more followers of Democratic Committeeman L. J. Gualdoni, a leading supporter of McKittrick here.

Repeatedly McKittrick linked Clark, Senators Gerald P. Nye and Burton K. Wheeler and Congressman Dewey Short of Missouri and Hamilton Fish as "isolationists and obstructionists" and tied Clark with the anti-administration Senators, Robert A. Taft and Arthur H. Vandenberg.

Opposed Strengthening Navy.
"When the threat of war came," McKittrick went on, "President Roosevelt said, 'I want ships, I want the country prepared against aggression, I want to fortify the Pacific islands,' but Vandenberg, Taft, Short and Clark said: 'No, there's not going to be any war. No, Mr. President, we're not going to support any program that will protect this country against any aggressor.' If these gentlemen's wishes had prevailed, then the war of Japan would have come through Washington might have come through."

Referring to Clark's praise Tuesday of the President's conduct of the war, McKittrick said the war also called for domestic co-operation, particularly in preventing inflation. He said Clark supported the Bankhead amendment to the price control law, which, "if it had become law would have increased the price of clothing for every citizen," and would have served only to help the textile industry. He also charged that Clark supported another amendment, which would have put the burden of proof on housewives to show that overcharges were willful and intentional. This change, he declared, would have virtually destroyed price control.

Cites Opposition to Bills.
Challenging Clark's declaration that Roosevelt had Clark's sincere support, McKittrick demanded: "Was he supporting the President when he voted against the conscription bill, the lend-lease bill, the transfer of Axis ships, and other measures?"

When seeking re-election in 1938, Clark promised to support Roosevelt, but after he won he forgot, said McKittrick, adding, "Do you believe Bennett Clark can fool the people of the state another time?" "No! no!" the audience shouted.

Clark did not wish to be definite, in his Booneville speech, about the terms of peace, McKittrick said, with a reference to a statement by Clark in the Congressional Record in 1939 that Clark wore the term "isolationist" as a badge of honor.

"I wonder if he's still wearing that badge of honor," the speaker added. "I've no record that he ever took it off."

"Let the boys return to a land of freedom, independence and home, sweet home," he concluded. "Are we going to help them secure those homes? That's for you to say, not me. The textile interests don't want to see me in the Senate. I have no interest but the people of this land of mine."

Labor Committee Formed Here to Support Clark in Race.
A labor committee of St. Louis labor leaders has been formed, with Vincent J. Lee as temporary chairman, to support United States Senator Bennett C. Clark (Dem.)

for renomination. They organized at the De Soto Hotel Wednesday, 25 leaders subscribing to the endorsement. Lee, vice-president of the AFL Operative Plasterers & Cement Finishers' International Union, praised Clark's labor record and his activities in behalf of veterans.

Republicans Term Roosevelt Plan For International Security Council Vague on Role of Small Countries

President Asked to Define Status of Lesser Powers — Some in Congress Say Unanimous Consent of Big Four Would Be Required for Action Against Aggressor.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).

REPUBLICANS called on President Roosevelt today to define the role of small nations in a proposed international security council some legislators said could operate militarily only by unanimous consent of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China.

Overnight study of the President's statement of plans for a post-war peace-preserving organization produced mixed reaction in Congress.

These developments indicated there is trouble ahead for the administration's preliminary plan for international co-operation:

1. Disclosure that the rough draft of the American plan places the decision on military action to suppress aggression primarily in the hands of the "big four," with any one of them permitted to veto the use of force.

2. A demand by Senator Bridges (Rep.) New Hampshire, who has supported the President's foreign policies in the past, for Roosevelt to say whether little nations will have a representative vote on a proposed international council or will be "subordinated to the big four."

Ball's Criticism.

3. Criticism of the President by Senator Ball (Rep.), Minnesota, an exponent of all-out collaboration, for "using some of the language of the so-called isolationists to employ to oppose any effective world co-operation" in Roosevelt's declaration against a superstate with its own police forces and other paraphernalia of coercive power.

4. An assertion by Senator La Follette (Prog.), Wisconsin, who holds strong nationalistic views, that the President's outline of security aims "fails to mention the most important question: Namely, whether the proposed organization should be established and the United States committed to it prior or after the time when the broad, general terms of the peace are known to the Congress and the country."

5. General approval of the objectives of the plan by most Democrats and cautious endorsement of its principles by Republicans. The President said in a statement yesterday that plans are being drawn for establishment of a "fully representative" world organization and an international court of justice.

'Special Majority' Question. "It is our further thought," the statement continued, "that the organization would provide for the council, elected annually by the fully representative body of all nations, which would include the four major nations and a suitable number of other nations."

The understanding is general in the Senate that the proposed council could order the use of military force against a potential or actual aggressor only by a

"special majority" of its members. This would mean, it was said, that the "big four" would have to vote unanimously on this question. Similarly, if the "big four" voted to employ force, the other nations could not over-rule the decision. Ball said that under such a system, the proposed organization would be doomed to failure.

"All an aggressor would have to do would be to get one of the big four to sympathize with his viewpoint and there would be no military action," he said.

Administration leaders said the "special majority" provision had been inserted to eliminate, if possible, the controversy which they expect would greet any proposal to bind the United States to use its military power.

Vandenberg's Reaction.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, chairman of the Republican postwar advisory committee, said the President's plan, "taken as a whole, is a constructive basis for discussion."

"In my view," Vandenberg added, the nature of the peace itself is an indispensable part of an ultimate judgment. Even a good league cannot cure a bad peace. Chairman Connally (Dem.), Texas, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the President's statement "is in line with consultations which the committee has been having with State Department representatives. Detailed provisions must be worked out through conferences with the representatives of our allies of the United Nations."

Acting minority leader White said he "viewed with general approval the blueprint as the President has announced it. There may be room for disagreement in the details of the plan."

Wheeler Favors Federation of States for Europe After War. NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—Senator Wheeler (Dem.) Montana, said last night a postwar federation of European countries patterned after the United States form of government would be the best insurance against a resurgence of Germany as a military power.

He told the Economic Leadership Conference that unless there was such a federation Europe would be divided into British and Russian spheres of influence with each wooing Germany to obtain a balance of power.

ROME, June 16.—Mathias F. Correa, chief of the New York office, who is now an Army Captain and chief of the A. M. G. black market control unit in Rome, will be named Assistant Secretary of the United States Navy shortly, according to an official but credible information circulated here. Correa declines to confirm the report, although he has heard "some vague and confusing rumors."

It is understood that Correa will remain here at least a month. He joined the Army in the summer of 1943 as a coast artillery unit, but his superiors later reassigned him to the A. M. G. He is a graduate of Fordham and Columbia Law School and is a bachelor.

COMMITTEE APPROVES FUND FOR DRIVE ON BLACK MARKET WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).

Funds to combat what OPA Administrator Chester Bowles called a growing black market, by the addition of 1239 enforcement workers, were approved today by the House Appropriations Committee. Bowles said the additional enforcement was needed especially in the meat industry. The committee sent to the floor a $2,595,165,356 deficiency supply bill for more than a score of Federal departments and subordinate agencies whose current year funds were insufficient. The largest single allotment was $177,750,000 for OPA's activities for the fiscal year starting July 1.

G. O. P. Must Show It Can Produce Just Labor Program, Willkie Says

Platform Should Acknowledge Necessary Requirements for Working Man's Protection, He Says—'Party on the Spot.'

By WENDELL L. WILLKIE

Distributed by the Associated Press.

FIFTH OF A SERIES.

THE problem of labor, today is dangerously sharp cleavage. Men more zealous than wise are trying to label the Democratic Party the exclusive friend of labor, and the Republican Party its inveterate enemy. The source of this theory is not difficult to discern.

Labor leaders feel that before the advent of the present administration labor did not get a fair break, and that previous Republican administrations gave consideration solely to a business point of view. Today, on the other hand, many industrialists believe with almost fanatical intensity that the present Administration sees everything exclusively through the eyes of labor, and plays politics both with and within labor.

There is considerable truth in the viewpoints of both. However, nothing inherent in the nature of the two parties justifies the roles that propagandists have sought to assign them. Assuming that there are in the Republican Party a few nineteenth-century industrialists who still believe that labor is a commodity, everyone of these has his Democratic counterparts in the Smith-Connallys who devote their energies to baiting organized labor.

G. O. P. on Spot.

But the Republican party has allowed itself to be put on the spot on the labor question. It has done so by failing to appreciate sufficiently that for labor the essential content of freedom is different in today's industrial society from what it was in the agricultural society of an earlier age.

Men no longer able to own, or to aspire to own, small businesses and farms have sought new solutions for a need which all Americans must respect—the need to control for themselves the circumstances which dictate their working lives. However much the present administration has bungled the problem, it has taken cognizance of this historic change.

A 1944 Republican platform should acknowledge the necessary requirements for the protection of labor under conditions existent today—not yesterday. Some of them are: The continuance and improvement of a Federal wage and hour law, and Federal regulatory machinery for its interpretation and enforcement.

However, it should be remembered that no law, sponsored by business or labor, is a good law which creates in the mind of either the justifiable belief that fair and impartial treatment cannot be obtained under it. Compulsory social insurances must be broadened in their base and progressively expanded. Coercive legislation such as the Smith-Connally Act which is both unwise and unenforceable should be repealed. For labor's inherent right to strike, which it has voluntarily abandoned during the war, is the basis of all its rights and must not be outlawed merely because the administration has created an atmosphere in which strikes are inevitable.

Texan Calls for Anti-New Deal Colation Ticket

Circular Letter Says Bricker-Byrd Team Would 'Sweep Country.'

By CHARLES G. ROSS

Contributing Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 16.

CONGRESSMEN and others here are in receipt today of a letter broadcast from Austin, Tex., by J. E. McDonald, Texas commissioner of agriculture, urging a coalition presidential ticket as a device to "eliminate the New Dealers and save our constitutional form of government."

McDonald does not mention the plot of some of the Southern anti-Roosevelt Democrats to get Democratic electors chosen who will, except under certain conditions, disregard the will of the national party convention. The letter, however, is a good indication of the lengths to which the revolting Southern Democrats are prepared to go.

The recent Democratic conventions and primaries in Texas, Georgia, Mississippi, South Carolina, Louisiana and other Southern states, the letter says, have proved that "Southern people are bitterly opposed to the New Deal." Therefore, it goes on, a coalition ticket of Gov. Bricker of Ohio, Republican, and Senator Byrd of Virginia, Democrat, or of Byrd and Bricker, would "sweep the country."

The states named, plus Virginia, North Carolina, Florida, Tennessee, Oklahoma and New Mexico, McDonald points out, have a total electoral vote of 120, or more than 45 per cent of the 266 required to choose a President in the electoral college. If, he says, these 120 votes could be taken away from the New Deal and voted for a coalition ticket, it would be "like obtaining 240 votes" and would insure the election of a Bricker-Byrd or a Byrd-Bricker combination.

His letter, McDonald says, is being sent to delegates and alternates to the Republican national convention, to national committee men, Senators, Representatives and Governors.

Pyle Walks Among Dead on Beach, Views Wreckage of Boats, Tanks

Standing Out From Shore Is Armada So Great It Almost Takes Your Breath, He Says.

By ERNIE PYLE

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NORMANDY BEACHHEAD, D-day plus two (By Wireless, Delayed).

I TOOK a walk along the historic coast of Normandy in the country of France. It was a lovely day for strolling along the seashore. Men were sleeping on the sand, some of them sleeping forever. Men were floating in the water, but they didn't know they were in the water, for they were dead.

The water was full of squishy little jellyfish about the size of your hand. Millions of them. In the center each of them had a green design exactly like a four-leaf clover. The good-luck emblem, sure. Hell yes.

I walked, hell yes. I walked for a mile and a half along the water's edge of our many-miled invasion beach. You wanted to walk slowly, for the detail on that beach was infinite.

The wreckage was vast and startling. The awful waste and destruction of war, even aside from the loss of human life, has always been one of its outstanding features to those who are in it. Anything and everything is expendable. And we did expend on our beachhead in Normandy during those first few hours.

Wreckage Under Water.

FOR a mile out from the beach there were scores of tanks and trucks and boats that you could no longer see, for they were at the bottom of the water—swamped by overloading, or hit by shells, or sunk by mines. Most of their crews were lost.

You could see trucks tipped half over and swamped. You could see partly sunken barges, and the angled-up corners of jeeps, and small landing craft half submerged. And at low tide you could still see those vicious six-pronged iron snarls that helped snag and wreck them.

On the beach itself, high and dry, were all kinds of wrecked vehicles. There were tanks that had only just made the beach before being knocked out. There were jeeps that had burned to a dull gray. There were big derricks on caterpillar treads that didn't quite make it. There were half-tracks carrying office equipment that had been made into a shambles by a single shell hit, their interiors still holding their useless equipment of smashed typewriters, telephones, office files.

There were LCT's turned completely upside down, and lying on their backs, and how they got that way I don't know. There were boats stacked on top of each other, their sides caved in, their suspension doors knocked off.

In this shoreline museum of carnage there were abandoned rolls of barbed wire and smashed bulldozers and big stacks of throw-away lifebelts and piles of shells still waiting to be moved. In the water floated empty life rafts and soldiers' packs and ration boxes, and mysterious oranges.

On the beach lay snarled rolls of telephone wire and big rolls of steel matting and stacks of broken, rusting rifles. On the beach lay, expended, sufficient men and mechanism for a small war. They were gone forever now. And yet we could afford it because we were on, we had our toehold, and behind us there were such enormous replacements for this wreckage on the beach that you could hardly conceive of their sum total. Men and equipment were flowing from England in such a gigantic stream that it made the waste on the beachhead seem like

AGED PAIR BURIES 16 YANKS, ADORNS GRAVES IN FRANCE

By FRANKLIN BANKER

A FIGHTER BASE IN ENGLAND, June 16 (AP).—An elderly, devout French pair buried 16 American airborne soldiers, set up white crosses and adorned the graves with flowers tied with pink silk ribbons, returning pilots reported today.

The soldiers were killed in D-day landings when their gliders crashed into antitank poles erected by the Nazis in fields near the French pair's farmhouse. Laboriously the aging pair dug neat rows of graves, laid the soldier dead to rest and tenderly covered the mounds with soil.

On each white cross they wrote the date—June 6, 1944—the name and the rank of the dead. Then they hung the soldiers' identification tags on the crosses.

The incident was related by Thunderbolt pilots returning from landing strips in Normandy. "The graves looked very nice," said Lt. Alonzo Morgan of Glens Falls, N. Y. "I met the man and wife, but couldn't talk to them, since I don't understand French."

TOKYO CONSIDERS NEW PLAN FOR EXCHANGING NATIONALS

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—A new plan for exchanging American nationals held by the Japanese by a shortened route through Soviet Union waters has been advanced by this government and now is under consideration in Tokyo.

A subcommittee of the House Foreign Affairs Committee made the disclosure today without details, in a report which also revealed:

1—Russia rejected a Japanese proposal to pick up relief supplies at Vladivostok but offered the use of other ports and is awaiting a reply from Japan.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

MacArthur and the Bonus March

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the Post-Dispatch of last Sunday, A. L. R. deplored the "fuss and ado over Mr. Avery's forcible ejection from his office," comparing Avery's "martyrdom" to the treatment accorded the bonus army during Hoover's administration, and not forgetting a sly stab at MacArthur, under whose immediate command the bonus army was ejected.

This is typical of many, in both parties, who see relatively inconsequential details but miss the complete picture. The bonus army marched on Washington to force the Government into doing something that had been refused by two administrations. The marchers were, by their show of force, acting suspiciously like insurgents. For no greater defiance, George Washington sent the soldiers to quell the Whiskey Rebellion, and Col. Robert E. Lee marched to the scene of rebellion at Harper's Ferry, when John Brown raided the place.

MacArthur's part was both simple and difficult. His Commander-in-chief had issued an order. As Chief of Staff, it was MacArthur's duty to have those orders executed. It was that simple.

He could have sent troops under any officer he chose to designate and let that officer bear the brunt of unpopularity. Instead, the Chief of Staff took personal command, with all the consequences.

MacArthur is a soldier's soldier—a considerate officer. Not one thinking man of the 1918 A. E. F. thinks one whit the less of MacArthur for that day at Anacostia. Only those who are thoughtless, or have vicious minds, would try to sully the record of MacArthur. It is too bad he was ever mentioned in relation to the presidential campaign, but that is no excuse for trying to smear him.

As for Avery being a "martyr" to the exclusive benefit of the Republican party, it may be unfortunate that it had to be Avery who stood fast and called for a showdown, but it certainly is not to the exclusive benefit of the Republicans. It is, or should be, of interest also to Democrats, and even to New Dealers, whether government is to be administered in orderly and constitutional manner, or by force and arms. That is the real issue in this case.

The administration backed away from the showdown, gave the business back to Avery before the results of the labor election were tallied. Biddle didn't try to seize the United Mine Workers when John L. Lewis defied the Government. But basically, where is the difference between Lewis and Avery? Each was and is determined to run his own business and to reject all interferences by Government, save by constitutional methods. Have they, or have they not, the right to that point of view?

It seems to me that the main domestic issue before the people of the United States in this year is this:

Are we, the people, through our Representatives and Senators, going to run our own country as the Constitution provides?

Or is the administrative department, constitutionally supposed to carry out the plans made by Congress, to rule the nation by proclamation, regulation and command, based on expediency or less?

DAVID C. SPENCER.

F. D. R.'s Bonus Veto

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As to the letter of A. L. R. about the bonus army and Mr. Avery, published June 11: It is true President Hoover did run the bonus army out of Washington. But Mr. Roosevelt tried to make himself a real fellow with the veterans, and then went to Washington and vetoed the bonus bill. He said the soldiers' bonus "would bankrupt the nation." He was no better than Hoover. We don't want Hoover or a fourth term for Roosevelt. I served 18 months in Europe in the First World War.

Finland's Perfidy

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In the issue of Wednesday, the Post-Dispatch had another good editorial criticizing the State Department's hypocritical attitude toward "poor, dear little Finland."

We saw a news item a few days ago stating that the United States had decided to accept another installment of Finland's old war-debt money. Another bribe, and bribes Finland's payments have been from the first.

A customer who tenders an installment on his bill with one hand and knives his creditor in the ribs with the other is not a desirable customer.

Service Men's Phone Calls

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

It seems that something could be done so that our servicemen can call their loved ones over long-distance telephone at a cheaper rate than is charged civilians. They must stand in line, sometimes for hours, then only to find that they don't have enough money to pay for the call with the increased tax charged for the privilege of using the telephone.

It is the non-commissioned man with his small pay that I am considering. Couldn't some arrangements be made at the barracks to charge according to base pay?

A MOTHER.

B-29's Menace to Japan

The assault on Japan yesterday by land-based Superfortresses opened up prospects so tremendous that in Berlin and in the capitals of the Nazi satellite and captive states, as well as in Tokyo, men with red murder on their hands must have "look'd at each other with a wild surmise."

Here military war and propaganda war were waged together for the deadliest possible effect: the most crushing kind of blow, portending who can tell what dire results, struck at a moment when German and Jap alike were apprehensive, seeing invasion barges along every coastline, least well prepared to resist terrific shock.

In a single action, the battleship of the air, B-29, is used for the first time; the existence of land bases for these huge craft in China is disclosed; Japan suffers its first air attack from land-based bombers, and creation of a world-wide command, directed from Washington, for a great and swiftly growing navy of the flying dreadnoughts is disclosed.

Yesterday's attack, unlike the Tokyo raid of two years ago, was no suicide mission performed for morale purposes, but a military mission against a military objective—a great Japanese steel center. The 1942 raid was catapulted from a carrier. The fact that yesterday's raid was land-based is news of the worst order for the Japanese war machine.

It should be remembered, against undue optimism, that as Gen. H. H. Arnold, Chief of the Army Air Forces, said earlier this year: "Those who think we can by a single order fly our planes to China, bomb Tokyo and bring Japan to her knees, do not yet understand the need for vast supply lines, well-equipped bases and planes built to fight under entirely different conditions from those that prevail over Europe." But there is equally no reason to forego elation which is soberly justified, and for elation the Anglo-American allies have today many good reasons.

To begin with, the B-29 is best adapted to attack Japan, on account of its great range, materially more than the B-17's 3000 miles; and it is reported to require no more than the B-17 in the way of a base of operations.

The field in which B-29s and bases can be operated is rich with possibilities. Our capture of Attu put an end to the Japs' confidence in the security of their islands, according to a young Chinese who recently toured Japan under the pretense of being a quailing, and whom Guenther Stein quoted in the Christian Science Monitor as saying: "The early and heavy bombing of Japan would be most effective." Col. Kunio Akiyama, an Army spokesman, said last fall that "the fate of the nation hangs on the result of decisive air battles with the enemy."

As to the ultimate or even the short-range objective of air attack upon Japan, moreover, the Japanese can only hazard guesses, all of them unhappy. They cannot allow themselves to forget that Admiral Nimitz has been saying since last November that he is driving toward the China coast. Our fleet in the Pacific has grown strong enough to support the most decisive strategy.

Beyond the menace to the Japanese in China there is always the ultimate menace—to the Japanese in Japan, probably the only menace to which the Japanese Navy would stand up and fight. More than one military analyst has conjectured that the war with Japan might best be concluded by destruction of the Imperial Navy. It has been the avowed purpose of the United States Navy in the Pacific to seek out the Imperial Navy and destroy it. But the Japanese have thus far refused to risk their Navy.

From the first bombing of the Japanese mainland which can be repeated at will, how will events spread out? To amphibious invasion of captive Southern China? To invasion by air, sea and land of the Japanese islands themselves? These are questions which the Japanese must now anxiously ask themselves; the answers to which will be not in their hands but in ours.

A New Warning on Airport Delay

Once more St. Louis has been warned that cities which do not get ready now for the Air Age are likely to face postwar decay, and once more Columbia Bottoms has been approved as the best site for this city's second major airport.

The warning comes from J. Woodall Rodgers, Mayor of Dallas, Tex., whose city already has a master plan of 21 airports. The new indorsement of Columbia Bottoms comes from the St. Louis County Planning Commission, and follows approval of the site by the Municipal Airport Commission, the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, Mayor Kaufmann, Comptroller Nolte and numerous aviation authorities.

The warning and the indorsement are a reminder that the Board of Aldermen's Airport Committee has not yet acted to get the city started on the aviation development that it deserves. Surely there can be no disputing the words of the Dallas Mayor, addressing the American Planning Conference: "Aviation will determine the future trade centers of the world and the trend of civilization for generations to come."

The only way for St. Louis to get its rightful share of what the Air Age promises is to develop an airport program, make a beginning and put it into effect.

Bricker Swats a Straw Man

When Gov. Bricker so vigorously assails "Federal control of insurance companies," he should know that he is battling a straw man. As the Governor of a great State, Mr. Bricker is aware that the Federal Government has done nothing to interfere with the regulation of insurance companies by the states.

Does the Governor really fear that the recent decision of the Supreme Court holding insurance to be commerce means that Federal regulation will supersede that of the states? The bakery business is commerce; so is selling automobiles. The Federal Government does not keep the states from regulating either.

What the Supreme Court decision means as to insurance is that the Federal anti-trust laws are applicable to interstate insurance operations just as they are to the interstate transactions of the bakery business or the automobile business or any other business; that if the insurance companies combine to create monopoly and fix rates in restraint of trade, they are subject to Federal prosecution.

Does Gov. Bricker wish the people to believe that he is opposed to the exercise of this power by the Federal Government? If he would remove the insurance companies from the restraints of the anti-trust laws, would he do the same for all other lines of business, or for a select few?

It is a sorry spectacle when a Governor who is a presidential candidate attempts to make political capital by so grossly misrepresenting the meaning of a high court decision.

Jobs After the War

From the Senate's special Postwar Planning Committee and from Bernard M. Baruch, head of an advisory group on war and postwar adjustment policies, come urgent reminders that steps must be taken promptly on plans which will offer the greatest assurance of jobs for all who want them after the war.

America must "hurry, hurry," said Mr. Baruch in his letter to War Mobilization Director Byrnes. "The nation still is months away from being prepared to meet the great adjustments that will come on that unknown X-day when one of our enemies is defeated."

The Senate committee, assuming that the armed forces will be demobilized at the rate of 500,000 to 600,000 a month, and that two to three million men will be retained in the military establishment, concludes that jobs will be needed for between 54 and 56 million persons.

This estimate is close to the figure set by other authorities. Employment on this scale means eight to 10 million more jobs than in the boom year 1929, or in 1937 and 1939, when 46 million were gainfully employed.

The answer to the problem as stated by the committee is the quite obvious one of "a much greater gross national production than this country has ever produced in peacetime." But, as has been pointed out in the Post-Dispatch series by Charles G. Ross on "Men and Jobs after the War," the maintenance of production at so high a level will be possible only if consumption is on a corresponding scale.

This means we must not only return to our former standards of living, but must extend those standards to a much larger proportion of the population than the segment which enjoyed them before, and that in many ways we must advance our standards beyond anything we have heretofore known.

The task is not altogether one of legislation. It involves the most intelligent and most ambitious planning by all industry and business, a thorough effort day in and day out to develop that type of production and distribution which will extend benefits to the greatest number.

Phone Call to Earlsboro

A long-distance message to Earlsboro, Ok., where Edward L. Duke operates the telephone exchange, is in order, as follows: his five fellow-Republicans on the investigating committee have decided that Duke is not a legal resident of the Twenty-third Ward, which elected him to represent it in the St. Louis Board of Aldermen.

Since the three minutes won't be up, the news can also be conveyed that the City Charter forbids a non-resident to hold the office of Alderman.

When the board meets today to hear the report, it is to be hoped that another call will be put through, to end the long wrangle over the absentee Alderman and his efforts to hang on. That call ought to be very brief, to-wit: Duke has been ousted from the Board of Aldermen.

To Hold the Inflation Line

The House has corrected the default of the Senate and has moved drastically against inflation by voting down, 87 to 191, the Bankhead amendment to increase the price of cotton textiles. This, it was estimated by the OPA, would have cost consumers 225 to 350 million dollars a year, and would inevitably have led to other price increases; hence to more and more inflation.

This was a sound step in the consumer's defense, but others remain to be taken by the conference committee which will now consider the House and Senate bills in order to produce a satisfactory piece of legislation.

One of the ill-advised provisions is that approved by the House, providing for appeal of OPA rulings to Federal District Courts. This would mean cluttering up court dockets all over the country, a confusion of rulings, quite possibly a breakdown of price-control machinery. The Emergency Court of Appeals, already in existence, has proved entirely capable of doing justice in all cases of complaints.

The upsetting of the Bankhead amendment is a major victory for inflation control, but the other hamstringing provisions must be eliminated before it can be said that Congress is actually holding the line against inflation.

They Are Not Candidates

Two news reports:

Albany—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, on vacation... preparing for swift trip to Chicago... drafting an acceptance speech.

Washington—Democratic National Chairman Hannegan has 45-minute "purely social visit" with President Roosevelt before departing for Chicago to make arrangements for Democratic national convention.

Willow Run is reported finally in full production. No longer Willow Walk.

This Is the Army's Beer

The Army Exchange Service deserves a toast for its efforts to get more beer for the fighting men, as shown by its conference this week lining up the smaller breweries, which heretofore have brewed for whomsoever they willed.

The toast may need to be drunk in water, for the whisky's gone to the black market, and the rum is mostly that sugary, grain-alcoholic insipidity that comes from Cuba and Puerto Rico nowadays, and as for the beer—

As everyone knows, the beer is going to the manly stomach the Army travels on. So a pledge in water to the bubbling golden brew that's quaffed by better men than we, and to the elbow-benders who quaff it: None but the brave deserve the beer!

The Germans complain that the cows in Poland don't give enough milk. Now we can sit back and watch the master race cope with a master problem.

PAYING HIS DEBT—TO THE NAZIS

Justice Murphy on Intolerance

The Mirror of Public Opinion

War may be won overseas, yet lost at home if Nazi doctrines of bigotry get control here, Supreme Court member warns; views anti-Semitism as "one of the most challenging problems today"; calls it both undemocratic and un-Christian; decision up to each citizen.

From an Address by Justice Frank Murphy of the United States Supreme Court, at National Convention of B'nai B'rith, New York

While our armies are saving this nation on the battlefields of Europe and Asia, we here at home can, and may, destroy it without the firing of a shot. We can lose the war at home, and wreck the United States we have known, by failing to see and tenaciously cling to the way of life our country represents.

The essence of this nation—the one thing that more than any other has made us great in the eyes of mankind—is the principle of individual liberty, the dignity and the equal status of man that underlies our entire political and social structure.

Men unrelated in racial origin, drawn from every corner of the earth, and professing every known religious creed, combined their talents and their efforts to create a "new world." This heritage was what the Fathers sought to perpetuate when they declared in the Declaration of Independence that all men are created equal and are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, among which are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. This was what they strove to protect when they wrote into the Constitution the guarantees of freedom of speech and press and religion, and of equality before the law.

What the Enemy Wants

And this, fellow Americans, is what our enemies seek to induce us to destroy by our own hand. They strive to set us at one another's throats. They would spread racism like a plague throughout our fair land. They work to incite us to bigotry and hatred toward our neighbors. They yearn to divide us in order that we will nullify the victory of our armies by civil war at home.

It is the appalling truth that this war upon our unity is meeting with no little degree of success. The dark specter of bigotry and persecution awakens like an ugly phantom across the horizon. On every side we see sinister forces at work in this country to array class against class, religion against religion, race against race.

Torments of venom and hatred, insidious propaganda and falsehoods, are daily unleashed. Racial and class hatreds, systematically fomented, have led to the destruction of property, the physical torture and even the murder of our fellow men.

Organized anti-Semitism is a weapon of the Nazi revolution. It is the most cunning of all the cunning methods devised by the Nazis to destroy democracies from within. It threatens not only the Jews, but the basic principles of democracy and Christianity as well.

Fuehrer Makes a Boast

Hitler has boasted that the seeds of Nazism and anti-Semitism which he has sown will survive military defeat. We must realize that unless these seeds are destroyed now, before racial brutality and persecution come into full bloom, the long struggle to create freedom and equality for all shall have been futile.

That is why, as I see it, anti-Semitism is one of the most challenging and significant problems in America today. And since anti-Semitism is not only contrary to the teachings of democracy but contrary to the teachings of Christ, Christians particularly must unite their efforts to combat it.

To stop the assault upon the Jews, which is really an assault on democracy and religion, is not easy. It cannot be stopped merely by the passage of a statute or ordinance or by a judicial decision. The solution lies only in the self-cleansing of our own hearts and minds of racial hatred. That may not be easy, but it is vitally necessary if we are to remain a free, united people.

Everything that is now said against the Jews was once directed against the early Christians, who for three centuries were subjected to some of the most inhuman persecutions in the world's history. It is a tragic thing that a religious majority like Christians, at one time a minority and the victims of what the Jews now endure, should become unwitting or unwitting carriers of vicious falsehoods which are not merely anti-Semitic but anti-Christian.

Other Groups Vulnerable

Intolerance may first wreak its vengeance on the Jews, but remember this: It will not stop there. There is every reason to believe that the denial of elementary rights to the Jews would be followed by the denial of elementary rights to other minorities. And in America we are all in one way or another members of a minority group.

To all Americans who believe themselves Christians, anti-Semitism is not only un-American, it is anti-Christian.

It is impossible to understand how a man can hate or persecute the Jews and at the same time pretend to keep allegiance to the principles of Christianity. The very basis of the Christian faith is a belief in the essential equality and dignity of the individual man. According to the teachings of Christ, the first and greatest commandment is to love God above all things, and the second is like to the first: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

Role of True Christian

The true Christian cannot hate his brother man. He dare not hate or contribute to persecution of those whose racial background or beliefs differ from his.

In a larger sense, the true Christian will do more than merely tolerate such persons. In their hour of trial he will rush to their defense, bind up their wounds and aid them in their search for security and peace.

This is no remote or academic problem that we face. This enemy is already within our gates. The tide is rising. The passions, the prejudices and the fears spawned by anti-Semitism are mounting constantly. The time to quell them is now. The battle must be fought and won through appeals to reason and morality in the public forums, the press, the schools, the churches and the homes. But first, it must be won in the heart and mind of each of us—face to face with his conscience.

Soviet Farm and Factory Chiefs Help Build the Country's Power

"Management in Russian Industry and Agriculture," by Gregory Blenscock, Solomon M. Schwartz and Aaron Yagov. (Oxford University Press, New York.)

This small volume by three Russian social scientists is a study of managers rather than of the aggregate economy of Soviet Russia. The authors differ in their analyses, but in so far as the book is a joint product, they see in the problem of industrial and farm managers a clew to understanding both the economics and the sociology of Soviet Russia.

At its best, this report is an introduction to the study of significant segments of the Soviet economy. It concerns itself with some of the smallest component units of the whole: the single industrial plant; the single collective farm, with particular emphasis on managers of plants, chairmen and other officers of collective farms.

Writing of the book was instituted, and its scope delineated, by Prof. Arthur Feller, whose death in the summer of 1942 deprived the collaborators of an invaluable guide and synthesizer. Undoubtedly many repetitions, divergent points of view and unbalanced emphases would have been avoided had Dr. Feller lived to complete his erudite editorship. The book is the first of a series to be published under the auspices of the newly created Institute of World Affairs, an independent unit of the New School for Social Research.

Discussing relations between the plant manager and the Communist party organization, the authors cite Soviet statistics to substantiate their thesis that party apparatus and general plant administration have become more and more homogeneous both socially and psychologically. Consequently, the roots of the friction between plant managers and party secretaries in plants have tilled out.

The chapter entitled "The Kolkhoz: A New Production Form," by Mr. Yagov, is probably the core of this volume. He concludes that despite ruthless and coercive methods of collectivization, which arouse much bitterness against the Kolkhozes (single collective farms), reorganization of the entire agricultural economy along the lines of large mechanized enterprises using advanced methods has begun to yield positive results. Agricultural output is rising, land productivity has improved, livestock breeding has begun to recover, rural production for the market has risen, and extreme fluctuations of crop yield have considerably abated.

Mr. Schwartz argues that industrial managers have become the nucleus of what might develop into a privileged and ruling class. The other authors have not found this hypothesis sufficiently supported by facts. Moreover, Mr. Yagov emphasizes the greater role of the agricultural directors within the Soviet economy, but he does not single them out as the privileged class. An emerging elite during the postwar period will be more of the military and engineering classes, and will undoubtedly command economic and political deference.

A New Sax Rohmer Hero

"Bim Bashi Baruk of Egypt," by Sax Rohmer. (Robert M. McBride & Co., New York.)

The war has put a temporary stop to the international activities of the sinister Dr. Fu Manchu, hero of a dozen or so Sax Rohmer books. He is being replaced by a dashingly romantic whose English heritage is shown clearly by his blue eyes and his courtly manner. This collection of 10 tales of adventure in Egypt is done with a verve that would indicate new Rohmer technique.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Our Blood Can Save Fighting Men

MOST of the things that we here at home can do to help in the struggle across the Atlantic seem pretty unrelated to that battle. But there's one way in which every American, excepting only the youngest and the oldest, can for a little time play a direct and vital part on the battlefield.

When you go to the Red Cross to give blood, you feel a real link with our fighting men. Lying there as the little bottle fills from the needle that taps the vein in your arm, you are likely to think some long thoughts.

You wonder if the blood you're giving may not, by one of those strange coincidences that life is so full of, go to help save a friend or a relative. You think of yourself as part of a living stream uniting men and women all over the world.

As conducted by the Red Cross, the blood drive of the Army and the Navy, the Blood Donor Service is big business. The quota set for this year is five million pints. Last year, the Red Cross collected 4,280,000 pints, which was more than the armed services asked for.

A Big Supply Wanted.

At the end of 1943, the total will be approximately 10,650,000, or nearly a pint of blood for every man in the service. As in all military planning, the Army and Navy allow for every possible contingency. It's better to have too much blood plasma than too little.

No single therapy has proved so effective as the plasma transfusion. Probably no one will ever be able to estimate even roughly the number of lives saved by the stream of blood that flows from America to all the battle fronts.

The Red Cross now has 35 donor centers in as many cities. To surrounding communities come mobile blood donor units on regular schedule.

Much of the work is on a volunteer basis. The thousands of women who give their time have the satisfaction of knowing that almost nothing they could do could be more useful.

Response to Invasion News.

The start of the invasion touched off a rush to the donor centers. That was a heartening response to the news of battle. But what the Red Cross wants is steady customers. The weekly quota must be filled. It is now stabilized at around 100,000 to 110,000 pints a week in accord with available laboratory facilities. So the Donor Service works toward permanent lists of people who come back on schedule.

Only in one instance has this remarkably successful volunteer service come into controversy. While the blood of Negroes is exactly the same as the blood of whites, the Red Cross collects from and distributes to the two races separately.

This separation caused sharp criticism. Here, said the critics, was a chance to show that the human race is bound together by a physical unity transcending all prejudices and passions of the moment. It was wrong, the argument went, to defer to primitive prejudice.

Services Are Responsible.

The Red Cross replied that the separation was "in deference to the wishes of those for whom the plasma is being provided." In deference, that is, to the Army and Navy. Those responsible apparently felt you could not fight a global war and at the same time cure a deep-seated prejudice.

In any event, one cannot question the decision of the Red Cross. It had the job to do. It had to go, not to the few, but to the many, for this fluid vital to human life. It is not hard to imagine the outcry from Southern Congressmen if the Red Cross had gone counter to the prejudices of a region from which a high proportion of our fighting men have come.

Careful medical research has shown that, with the vast majority, repeated blood-giving has no effect on the general health of the individual. With some, it may even have a beneficial effect in stimulating regeneration of the hemoglobin.

As small a contribution as it is, you nevertheless have a feeling of pride when you leave and the Red Cross lady in trim gray uniform writes another date on the back of your record of blood donations. For an hour you've been privileged to participate in the conflict on which our destiny depends.

STORM DELAYS OPERA FIRST TIME; STOPS ROOFTOP SHOW

A blustery thunderstorm last night gave the city brief respite from the heat, but the temperature this morning was in its way back into the nineties. The thermometer reading dropped 15 degrees during the storm, from 84 at 9 p. m. to 69 at 10 p. m., the night's low point.

The storm interrupted the Municipal Opera performance in Forest Park for the first time this season. The audience of 9300 took shelter in the pergolas for a half hour until the show, "Good News," resumed. A performance at the rooftop theater atop the Young Men's Hebrew Association building, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, was postponed until Monday night.

Yesterday's high temperature of 92 degrees at 5 p. m. was the hottest day of the year and approached the record for June 15 of 94.6. The record for today's date was 100 degrees in 1918.

THE REV. AUGUST J. VON BRUNN TO OBSERVE GOLDEN JUBILEE

The Rev. August J. von Brunn, pastor of St. Engelbert Roman Catholic Church, 4336 Shreve avenue, will celebrate Sunday the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood. Many priests, relatives and friends will attend an 11 a. m. mass at which Msgr. Leo A. Steck of St. Gabriel's Church will preach.

Father von Brunn, 73 years old, has been pastor of St. Engelbert since 1922. Before that for 24 years he was pastor of St. Theodore's Church in Flint Hill, Mo. He was born in New York City, and his family moved to St. Louis when he was 6 years old.

Father von Brunn will be celebrant of the mass Sunday.

HIGH COURT ORDERS

INTEGRATION OF BAR

Single Unit for Missouri Created at Request of Lawyers' Groups.

By BOYD F. CARROLL, Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 16.—Full integration of the bar of the state, with membership required of all lawyers in a single governing body to be known as the Missouri Bar, was ordered today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc. The court, acting under its inherent powers to regulate the bar and the practice of law, adopted with virtually no change the recommendations of a special committee of lawyers, headed by former Attorney General Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis, appointed by the court last November at the request of various bar groups to inquire into the desirability of integration.

The integration order became effective with its entry today, but the first board of governors, to be elected by the lawyers by districts, will not assume office until Sept. 30.

The integration proposal was endorsed by lawyers of the state recently, by a vote of 1937 to 304, in an advisory referendum.

The object of bar integration, urged for years in Missouri by various bar groups, is to elevate the standards of the bar, provide better supervision through establishment of a single governing organization, and generally improve the administration of justice.

The order makes no change in the present system of disciplining unethical attorneys and admissions to the practice of law, which remain under direct control of the Supreme Court. That system was established under the partial integration in effect heretofore.

The new group was not to prevent continued existence of other bar organizations, but likely will minimize their activities.

Government of the group, subject to general control by the Supreme Court under its powers, will be in a board of governors, whose 25 members will be elected by districts. The board will be the representative body for the bar, the court said, and "its determination of questions of method and of policy relating to accomplishment of the purposes of the Missouri bar shall be controlling."

Such questions of policy may be subjected to a referendum of lawyers.

WATER OAKS, 500-acre country place on the Meramec River near Steelville, Mo., which since 1926 has been owned jointly by four St. Louis families, will house a reunion this week end. Two of the families, those of Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Bryan and Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Winans Horner, now related by marriage, will go to Water Oaks today, together with their children, except for those overseas or in far away military posts.

The occasion will be a party for Lt. and Mrs. David Allan Horner, who arrived Tuesday from Salina, Kan. Other members of the house party, all of whom have known each other since childhood, are the Bryans' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bryan, and their children, Ann and Billy, and the Horners' son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Horner, and their young son, Daniel. Mr. and Mrs. Bryan's son, Ena, John K. Bryan, U. S. N. R., who had hoped to have his leave timed for this week, will be unable to be here for the country party, but will arrive next week from Mare Island Navy Yard near San Francisco to visit his parents.

Lt. and Mrs. David Horner (she was Winifred Bryan) are at the Bryan home, 5915 De Giverville avenue, where Wednesday they celebrated their first wedding anniversary. He has been on duty at Smoky Hill Army Air Field. His parents live at 64 Broadway drive, Clayton.

To Visit Parents.

MR. AND MRS. P. TAYLOR BRYAN JR., 4629 Pershing avenue, are expecting a visit from their son, P. Taylor Bryan III, a student at the University of Washington under the Navy V-12 program. He will arrive June 26 to spend a short leave, his first since last fall.

The Bryans' daughter, Miss Mary Ann Taylor Bryan, will leave soon for Camp Wagonissa at Pequot Lake, Minn., where she is enrolled for the summer. Also leaving soon will be her two brothers, Donald and Christy, who will spend the summer on ranches in Wyoming. Donald will work at A-Bar-A Ranch at Encampment, returning at the end of the summer to enter the Army Air Forces in October, and Christy will work at Triangle-X Ranch at Jackson Hole.

Henry Armstrong Knocks Out Bummy Davis in the Second Round

Brooklyn Boy Down Four Times

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP). — Henry Armstrong still is one of the best fighters in the business. The former triple champion demonstrated it last night by flattening Al "Bummy" Davis in less than two rounds at Madison Square Garden.

A crowd of 16,084 (gross gate $58,822) screamed deafening as Hammerin' Henry from Los Angeles battered the Brooklyn bad boy to the canvas four times, twice in the first round, before Referee Frank Fullam stopped it after 69 seconds of the second stanza. Davis was stretched full length, flat on his face, when Fullam, without bothering to count, waved Armstrong to his corner.

From the start Armstrong, a master at infighting, pinned Davis against the ropes. He didn't give Bummy an opportunity to use the left hand punch that kayoed Lightweight Champion Bob Montgomery.

After the first two minutes, Armstrong stepped clear and socked a hard left to the pit of Davis' stomach. Bummy's knees sagged. A crushing left and right crumpled Davis to the floor. He got up at eight, legs shaking, and was knocked through the ropes. He just managed to get back inside the ring as the bell rang. Many thought he had been counted out.

In the second round Davis went down for a count of four, bounced up and got knocked down again. He started to get up at two, but exhausted fell flat on his face as Fullam called a halt.

"I felt pretty sharp," explained Armstrong later. He weighed 141½ pounds for the scheduled 10-rounder.

Armstrong's next bout is in Washington on Wednesday against Cpl. Nick Letasio of Bolling Field. "Whistling" Willie Williams, 126½, Wilmington, Del., scored a surprise five-round technical knockout over Ham Wiloby, 122, New York, in the scheduled six-round semi-final. Referee Eddie Josephs stopped it at 1:51 of the round.

Freddie Dawson, 134½, Chicago, outpointed George "Dusty" Brown, 135½, Philadelphia, in a bruising six-rounder. Rudy Dennis Richardson, 153½, New York, outpointed Ray Lovell, 153, West New York, N. J., in six rounds. George Cooper, 130, New York, outpointed Pete Virgin, 125, Garfield, N. J., in a four-rounder.

Paul Dean Wins First Game With Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., June 16 (AP). — Paul Dean had a victory to his credit today for his first effort in his latest comeback attempt with the Little Rock Travelers, but he had to have some help from another major league leaguer, Willis Hudlin, in attaining it.

The Nashville Vols tagged him for eight hits in the four innings he pitched last night, but he displayed some of his old effectiveness in holding the Vols to only two runs. Hudlin relieved him in the fifth and held Nashville in check as Little Rock won 7 to 3.

An overflow crowd of 7,000, largest of the season, turned out to watch Paul pitch and to hear Brother Dizzy Dean, now a St. Louis sports announcer, call the plays over the mike.

Sanner to New Orleans.

MONTREAL, June 16 (AP). — Montreal sent Pitcher Roy Sanner to New Orleans of the Southern Association on option today.

Henry Makes a Bum Out of Bummy

AL "BUMMY" DAVIS falls through the ropes as he is knocked down for a nine-count, in the first round of his fight last night at New York with HENRY ARMSTRONG (right), who won the fight on a TKO verdict, after 69 seconds of the second round.

Watson, Swedish Angel Again Top Mat Card

Bill Watson of Toronto and Jack Pifer's Swedish Angel will meet again tonight in the feature of five bouts on Tom Packer's wrestling card at Kiel Auditorium. Watson was declared the winner in their last meeting here two weeks ago, when the Angel was disqualified for roughing his foe, and Pifer's man was later fined $100 by Commissioner Arthur G. Heyne.

In other bouts Ernie Dusek will meet Dave Levin, and George (Kover) Koverly will oppose Babe Zaharias, Warren Bockwinkel is matched against Jack McDonald and Johnnie Swenski and Joe Millich will meet in the opener at 8:30 p. m.

Cardinals Sell Gumbert To Cincinnati Reds

Harry Gumbert, tall righthanded pitcher, has been sold by the Cardinals to the Cincinnati Reds for a cash consideration with no other players involved, it was announced by the Cardinals last night.

Sam Breadon, president, said today that the chief reason for disposing of Gumbert was that there were 10 hurlers on the roster, too many to keep busy and it was desired to give the younger pitchers a chance to work regularly.

The amount of money involved was not disclosed.

Gumbert came to the Cardinals from the New York Giants in 1941 and so far this season has won four games while losing two.

Harry passed his pre-induction examination and was accepted for Army duty sometime ago but has not been called as yet.

Last year he suffered from an arm ailment which handicapped him for the last half of the schedule but so far this season has been all right. He won 10 and lost five in 1943.

Cincinnati has figured to be one of the chief threats to the Cardinals retaining their National League championship and thus it was a surprise that the Cardinals would strengthen them by the sale of a good pitcher to them. The Reds now are in third place, however, 8½ games behind the Cardinals.

The Cardinals have another open date today while they meet the Pittsburgh Pirates in a night game tomorrow.

Jack Meagher To Coach Hawks

IOWA CITY, Ia., June 16 (AP). — Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, former head coach and athletic director at Auburn University (Ga.), will coach the 1944 Iowa Navy Pre-flight football team, it was announced last night.

Meagher, who arrived on the base yesterday, will succeed Lt. Col. Faurst, former University of Missouri coach, who was transferred to Monmouth (Ill.) College last January.

The new coach played end for Notre Dame in 1916-18. After serving four years with the Marines in World War I, Meagher played a year of professional football with the Chicago Bears before starting his coaching career at St. Edwards University, Austin, Tex., in 1922.

Meagher coached at Rice Institute from 1928 to 1933 before going to Auburn. He left Auburn a year ago to enter the service, and his most recent assignment was at the technical training center at Norman, Ok.

Muncrief Seeks 5th In Row

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 16.—Seeking his fifth victory in succession and his sixth of the season, Bob Muncrief, big righthander of the Browns' staff, who has been charged with two losses this season, will oppose the Tigers in a twilight game here today.

Stubby Overmire, who has won two while losing five contests, is expected to pitch for Detroit.

The Browns are working on a three-game winning streak, having won the last game of Sunday's doubleheader from Cleveland before leaving home, then taking two straight from the White Sox in Chicago.

Tomorrow big Jack Jakucki likely will pitch for the Browns and for Sunday's doubleheader Sewell probably will use Kramer in one game with the other starter doubtful.

Jimmy Enright to Represent City in Boys' All-Star Game

By Harold Tuthill

Fourteen-year-old Jimmy Enright, second baseman on the Stockham Post American Legion Junior baseball team, who has just completed his freshman year at McBride High School, will be St. Louis' representative in the All-Star American Boys' baseball championship game at the Polo Grounds in New York, Aug. 7. Enright was selected by Leo Browne, State chairman of the Legion Athletic Association, after a thorough canvass of boys playing baseball in this district.

Enright, who will be 15 July 21, is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. He is as graceful as a cat around the keystone sack and takes a nice cut at the ball as his batting average of almost .380 in 16 games for the Stockhams last year attests.

Three-Year Veteran.

Despite his youthfulness, young Enright should be able to hold his own with the other 27 stars selected from the United States, because he has been playing baseball for some time. Three years ago, the St. Matthew's team, on which he played second and third base and did a bit of pitching, finished second in the Parochial League. He helped his team into first place the following year and last season St. Matthew's lost in the city championship semifinals.

JIMMY ENRIGHT

Then he played for the Stockham Post team which won district honors, but was nosed out by Cape Girardeau in a 11-inning struggle for the State championship at Jefferson City.

Similarly, Enright's rise has been steady in the Municipal League. Last year he played with the St. Matthew's Juniors in the Frank Crespi League and this year he has climbed into the 16-19-year-old class as a member of the Flyers in the Johnny Hopp Intermediate League.

Enright has so much native ability that it is natural he should be active in other sports. He played outside right on the Lenhardt-McManus Junior Soccer Club and was a member of McBride's freshman basketball squad.

Runs in Family.

Jimmy's middle name is Michael, named after his father, Michael Francis Enright, general freight agent of the C. & E. I. Railroad, who was a prominent semi-pro baseball and soccer player a generation ago. Jimmy's father also was a second baseman. The family formerly lived on Compton Hill, but now they reside at 3568 Greer.

Young Enright will be in fast company when he plays in the All-Star game, because Esquire Magazine is assembling the best 28 players it can find to form a West Squad, under the direction of Mel Ott and an East Squad, to be led by Connie Mack. According to Ralph Cannon, sports editor of Esquire, both Mack and Ott are taking a great deal of interest in the composition of the teams. Their conversation, though, is limited, because a ruling passed a few months ago by Judge Keneas M. Landis, baseball commissioner, prevents major leaguers from tampering with Legion players.

This is Esquire's first effort at promoting a boys' all-star game, but officials of the magazine hope to make it an annual affair. The Aug. 7 contest will be handled in big league fashion and will be the high spot of a week's stay in New York for the 28 lucky boys.

Parkers Seeded First in Tennis Meet Tomorrow

With Ward and Merceine Parkers first seeded in men's and women's singles, respectively, play will begin tomorrow afternoon at 1 p. m. in the annual Triple A amateur tennis championships.

Allen Richardson is seeded second in men's play, followed by Ken Oliver and Harold Wiese, but all three drew opening-round byes. Parker, however, will meet Norman Petersen.

Mrs. Parker is matched against Rita Reagan in the first round. Second-seeded Betty Ruth Hulbert drew a bye.

First round pairings:

TOMORROW—L. C. L. Varns vs. Norman Dean, 1 p. m.; Russell Hahn vs. Bob Swain, and Bob Light vs. Sam Yulish, 2 p. m.; Bill Dierweg vs. Walter Hottelmann, Ward Parker vs. Norman Petersen, and Bob Savitt vs. Eugene Rottley, 3 p. m.; John Farrar vs. Bob Richhardt, Bob Scoville vs. Art Paulsich, and Jerry Kriegerman vs. Walter Hamberg, 4 p. m.; Elmer Hirth vs. John Seefert, 5 p. m.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Give St. Louis the Credit, If Any

ONE Oliver "Pat" Tebeau, leader of the Cleveland Spiders and later of the St. Louis Cardinals, long ago, is credited in a recent Saturday Evening Post short article written by Arthur Mann, with having launched the major league world on its mad career of pinch hitting.

And since Pat was born in St. Louis and got his early training with Jack O'Connor and other Goose Hill products, that makes the Mound City in a measure responsible for this somewhat overdone feature of modern baseball tactics.

Substitutions any time in any position were made legal in 1891. . . . Of this Mann wrote: "Pat Tebeau was the first to make use of the rule and came up with the revolutionary idea of substituting a batter for another in a tight situation."

"Tebeau sprang his startling innovation in the ninth inning of a game in the now-vanished Eastern Park, Brooklyn, on June 7, 1892, with the Brooklyn club leading 2-0."

"Billy Hart, who had held the Spiders' scoreless, opened the ninth by retiring Jimmy McAleer, but Catcher Jack O'Connor singled. Tebeau made baseball history by ordering John Joseph Doyle, a substitute catcher, to bat for Davis."

Then baseball's first pinch hitter smacked a single into right center advancing O'Connor to third. Hart forced in a run later, but won the game for "Ward's Wonders" 2-1.

"Seven substitute batters were used that season," observed Mann, "as compared with the modern figure of about 1½ per game." . . . And it was the late

PINCH-HIT PIONEER

OLIVER "PAT" TEBEAU, captain of the riotous Cleveland Spiders and later with the Cardinals, was the first to make use of having first used a pinch-hitter in a major league game.

Charley Dryden, humorist and baseball writer for the Chicago Tribune, who was credited with having coined the term "pinch hitter," which has persisted ever since.

This Town Led All in Turning Out Players.

ST. LOUIS still enjoys a reputation as being one of the best producers of major league baseball talent of all the cities of the country. . . . At one period it led the United States year after year in number of St. Louis players active in organized baseball.

When O'Connor and Tebeau first came up, the Mound City was producing many standouts. . . . But this pair went places in a big way. . . . Both were developed as members of the old Shamrocks team, a local semi-pro outfit which flourished in the neighborhood of Fourteenth and Branch streets, in the '80s.

The team mopped up everything in this area. . . . Later both O'Connor and Tebeau became big leaguers and Tebeau became manager of the Cleveland Spiders, a club which in 1890 was transferred to St. Louis and became the Cardinals, when the National was still a 12-club league.

O'Connor later became Ban Johnson's agent in "wrecking" National League clubs by signing their star players for the new American League, before the National Agreement stopping this practice was signed.

O'Connor became manager of the St. Louis Browns but later was dismissed, following the Cobb-Lajoie rumpus in 1910.

Both O'Connor and Tebeau, now dead, were later identified with local sporting and business enterprises for many years.

WANT A $2,000,000 MANHATTAN?

Here's the recipe below! We call it a $2,000,000 "dream of a drink"—because that's what Fleischmann invested in grains, skill and research before we released one golden bottle of this rich, luxurious, straight bourbon whiskey. We make it in limited amounts. We have to—it's so smooth and delicious!

FIRST, GET FLEISCHMANN'S BOND

THEN DO THIS!

1. In a mixing glass containing ice cubes put one dash of Angostura bitters.
2. Add 3/4 oz. of sweet vermouth and 1 1/2 oz. of delicious Fleischmann's BOND.
3. Stir. Strain into chilled 4-oz. glass. Garnish with Maraschino cherry. Then close your eyes—and drink!

Two Jockeys Fined $50 Each at Fairmount

Horse Is Ruled Out In 7th Race

By Dent McSkimming

Pat C. Galliger and his associates in the stewards' stand at Fairmount Park were in a "fine" mood yesterday. Before the program opened they announced that Jockey Bobby Haber had been fined $50 for an infraction of the day before. And then, in the seventh race, they disqualified the horse which finished second and fined the jockey, Luther Slape, another $50.

This, the second disqualification of the meeting, was based on a very obvious foul committed as the field of eight came up the stretch, in front of the grandstand. Slape's mount, Tidy Peter, after a slow start from the six-furlong gate, worked his way up on the outside of the field. Wee Captain, ridden by Dell Jessop, also moved forward and the two caught the leaders at the same moment, about an eighth of a mile from home. There, Tidy Peter suddenly bore in and crashed against Wee Captain. The latter suffered somewhat but went right on to win by the margin of a head over Tidy Peter. Slape was called into the stewards' stand, and, after questioning him, the officials ordered the revised posting of winning numbers, placing Slape's horse last.

The stewards, in their formal announcement, said Tidy Peter was disqualified and Slape was fined "for interfering with horses near the finish."

Haber's fine was for "rough riding" on his mount, Gabe, in the eighth race on Wednesday. Gabe finished third to Pandisco and Myrna.

The only previous disqualification came on May 31 when the winner, Gypsy Lass, was penalized by being placed second for having interfered with the horse Unamin which was declared winner in the revised posting.

Horses, as well as jockeys, feel the weight of the judges' hand. At latest reports, four horses are barred from starting at Fairmount without the stewards' permission. They are: Town Lace, which bled in her last start; False Card and Red Fox, which were too fractious at the barrier, and Shadown, which refused to break with the field in her most recent start.

G. W. Hawkins, who won the mare Phantom Lady recently in a claiming race, has lost her again, this time to L. Fryar for the $1000 claiming price. Hawkins is the breeder of this horse and he was much disturbed when she was claimed from him two years ago. This time he was able to keep her in his barn only one week. She ran second yesterday and was claimed.

NEWMARKET, England, June 16 (AP).—Hycilla, owned by the American William Woodward, won the Oaks Classic today at odds of 8 to 1. Monsoon and Kannabis were second and third in the mile and a half test for three-year-old fillies. The co-favorites Tudor Maid and Picture Play were out of the money.

30 Injured When Wind Blows Down Roof Of Milwaukee Park

MILWAUKEE, June 16 (AP).—Four persons were critically hurt and 26 others suffered lesser injuries last night when a violent wind blew down part of the grandstand roof at the Milwaukee Brewers' baseball park where 5100 fans were watching an American Association game.

Among those in a serious condition was Arnold Shaw of Detroit, who suffered a fractured skull. As the storm swept over the stadium, the field lights went out. Pillars supporting the wooden roof of the grandstand along the first base stands gave way, plunging shattered timbers onto about 1000 persons. Hundreds of persons surged onto the playing field and were drenched by a heavy downpour.

The grandstand lights flashed on momentarily, revealing many spectators caught in the wreckage. Club officials said the fact that the field was in darkness probably prevented a panic as hundreds were unaware of the collapse of the roof.

Miss Betz Upset in Clay Court

DETROIT, June 16 (AP).—Dorothy May Bundy, who rocked the tennis world six years ago by defeating Alice Marble at Forest Hills, has contributed another notable upset in knocking Pauline Betz from the National Clay Court championship.

Miss Bundy was a 21-year-old with a great tennis heritage—her mother and father, May Sutton and Tom Bundy, were national champions—that day she beat Miss Marble. "Dodo" would be a national champion herself, her friends said, but Miss Bundy's record in recent years has been so-so. She ranks No. 5 nationally.

She reached another pinnacle yesterday, however, at the Detroit Tennis Club, where she eliminated Miss Betz, 7-5, 6-3, to gain tomorrow's final round. Her opponent will be the winner of a match to day between second-seeded Dorothy Hart of Miami, and fourth-seeded Mary Arnold of Los Angeles.

Miss Bundy's steadiness was her strong point in the conquest of Miss Betz, two-time winner of the National lawn title at Forest Hills. Pauline, who barely pulled out a three-set victory Wednesday over Shirley Fry of Akron, O., obviously was handicapped by a lame right shoulder, but she declined to make mention of it after the match.

The two are Californians, Miss Bundy from Santa Monica, and Miss Betz from Los Angeles. Miss Betz was top-seeded, two notches ahead of her conqueror.

In the men's division, Francisco (Pancho) Segura of Coral Gables, Fla., and Billy Talbert of Indianapolis, the two top seeded players, continued to make a rout of opposition. Segura gained the semifinals by defeating unseeded Jack McManis of Los Angeles, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, and meets the winner of today's match between Pfc. Rex Norris of Lansing, Mich., and Buckley Field, Colo., and Sam Rotherg of Bay City, Mich.

Hubert Manly of Detroit, 6-0, 6-1, 6-0, and tomorrow meets Ralph Dilley of Cleveland, who downed Wendell Chapin of Bay City, 6-2, 6-0, 6-1. The men's finals are Sunday.

Lou Nova to Oppose Bill Peterson Tonight

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 16 (AP).—Lou Nova of California, veteran challenger in the heavyweight division, will meet Bill Peterson, young Chicagoan, in a 10-round bout here tonight.

Nova, twice conqueror of Max Baer, weighs 204 pounds. Peterson, who scales 198, has had but two bouts since his discharge from the Army because of a punctured eardrum. He won both.

Two-Hitter by Legion Hurler

The Aubuchon-Dennison and Wellston teams are tied for first place in the Northern Division of the American Legion Junior Baseball League with two victories each following yesterday's contests at Fairground Park in which Wellston nosed out the Stockhams, 4-3, and the Roosevelt Post was smothered by the Aubuchons, 16-0.

In the third Northern game the Goldmans gained their first victory of the campaign, defeating Lincoln Post, 4-1.

The three South Side Division leaders came through with victories. Ray Kolafa of Anheuser-Busch held the Affton team to two hits as his club scored a 5-0 triumph at Carondelet Park. Richmond Heights defeated the Americanism Council team, 6-4, at Sublette Park, and the 138th Infantry club routed the Horn-Stecker team, 13-1, at Cherokee Park.

PLYLE WALKS AMONG DEAD ON BEACHHEAD

nothing at all, really nothing at all.

A FEW hundred yards back up the beach is a high bluff, up there we had a tent hospital, and a barbed-wire enclosure for prisoners of war. From up there you could see far up and down the beach, in a spectacular crowd's nest view, and far out to sea.

And standing out there on the water beyond all this wreckage was the greatest armada man has ever seen. You simply could not believe the gigantic collection of ships that lay out there waiting to unload.

Looking from the bluff, it lay thick and clear to the far horizon of the sea and on beyond, and it spread out to the sides and was miles wide. Its utter enormity would move the hardest man.

As I stood up there I noticed a group of freshly taken German prisoners standing nearby. They had not yet been put in the prison cage. They were just standing there, a couple of doughboys leisurely guarding them with Tommy guns.

The prisoners too were looking out to sea—the same bit of sea that for months and years had been so safely empty before their gaze. Now they stood staring almost as if in a trance.

They didn't say a word to each other. They didn't need to. The expression on their faces was something forever unforgettable. In it was the final horrified acceptance of their doom.

If only all Germany could have had the rich experience of standing on the bluff and looking out across the water and seeing what their compatriots saw.

REPUBLICANS NEED JUST LABOR PLANK, WILLKIE ASSERTS

party must demonstrate visibly and tangibly that it appreciates the contribution of labor to our economic well-being. It must leave no doubt that it understands that labor has legitimate grievances, and justifiable aspirations toward a more secure place with larger participation in our modern industrial life. Above all, the Republican party must demonstrate that it can produce a constructive, just and humane labor program.

NEW YORK—Members of the Women's Air Force Service Pilots have been measured by Dr. Alice Brues, anthropologist, to determine their average dimensions.

The purpose was to enable aircraft designers to make adjustments to the interior of planes to allow the WASPs of various sizes to operate them efficiently.

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—A woman shopper dropped a package on a busy sidewalk and walked on.

A few paces before turning to pick it up. A helpful man kicked it ahead a few feet so she wouldn't have to go back to pick it up.

She smiled her thanks, he tipped his hat and walked away.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—A group of workmen discovered, much to their surprise, that a swarm of bees are making their home in the interior of the shaft of President Abraham Lincoln's tomb.

The discovery was made when the men went into the shaft to make repairs.

Missouri Killer Executed

AFTER SEVEN REPRIEVES

JEFFERSON CITY, June 16.—Allen Lambus, 73-year-old Negro, who had been sentenced to death for the murder of a woman, was executed at 12:10 a. m. today in the lethal gas chamber in the State Penitentiary here.

Because of the delays, Lambus apparently had not expected the sentence to be carried out. Before he was led into the gas chamber, after hearing the death warrant read, Lambus asked Warden Paul E. Kaiser to call Gov. Donnell, who had granted him reprieves, "and ask him to do something."

Lambus originally was sentenced to be executed last Oct. 1, after he pleaded guilty in Mississippi County Circuit Court to the murder of a 13-year-old Negro girl near Charleston, Mo., last July, by striking her with a hay hook. Later he repudiated his confession, asserting it had been obtained by coercion.

Mosenthien Island Airport

NOT PRACTICAL, KINSEY SAYS

A consideration of Mosenthien Island as a major airport site is not warranted at present because St. Louis' airport needs are immediate and it would probably be years before an airport could be built on the island, Milton M. Kinsey, chairman of the Municipal Airport Commission, told the Special Aldermanic Airports Committee yesterday.

"The whole plan for an airport there is predicated on the Army engineers' plan for channel development," Kinsey said. "An airport there is out of the question until the river program is completed, and no one knows when that will be. The cost to the city would be much greater than at the Columbia Bottoms."

Alderman Jake Sellers, committee chairman, said the committee dials when the channel development work is completed, the present program, recommended in 1939, will be undertaken.

U. S. Flyers Kill 1200 Japs

IN ATTACKS NEAR CHANGSHA

CHUNGKING, June 16 (AP).—More than 1200 Japanese troops were killed in the area of besieged Changsha in Hunan Province in three days of operations of the Fourteenth United States Air Force, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today.

B-25 Mitchell bombers with P-51 fighter escort, attacking Luyang, east of Changsha, launched the widespread air attack on Tuesday, a communiqué said. Other fighters and B-25s joined in on subsequent days and in one attack P-40s struck at 2000 Japanese on a road, killing an estimated 500.

American bombers damaged three Japanese freighters at the mouth of the Yangtze near Shanghai, and sank one and damaged another off Hongkong, it was also announced.

Body of Woman Found in Sack.

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—The almost nude body of a red-haired young woman, about 20 years old, with two abdominal stab wounds, was found today crumpled in a green sack left in a debris-strewn lot behind the lower East Side tenements.

BIG VOLUME OF STOCKS TURN OVER; 5-YEAR PEAK PRICES

NEW YORK, June 16 (AP).—The post-invasion bull market in stocks moved along at full tempo today with volume of 2,817,340 shares and industrial and rail leaders up fractions to about 2 points.

Absorbing a steady flow of profit selling the motors, steels, rubbers, coppers, rails and blue chip industrials were able to maintain good headway throughout and near the close prices generally were not far from the tops.

Today's turnover, the heaviest in more than a year, compared with sales of 1,850,614 shares yesterday.

The trading broadened again today with 1009 separate issues selling compared with 924 yesterday. Of the 1009 issues traded in today 612 were higher, 181 lower and 216 unchanged. Two hundred fifty-nine made new 1944 highs and four new 1944 lows.

The 60 stock index reached a closing high of 54.9, up .5 of a point on day. The index was at highest since October, 1937.

New Rush of Buying.

The new rush of buying was attributed by brokers to early victories ideas generated by the heavy air and naval attacks on Japanese positions and reports of more Allied progress in Normandy.

Chrysler continued a special favorite and was bid up more than 2 points. Other buoyant performers were Westinghouse, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodrich, American Smelting, International Nickel, Bendix, Boeing, Atlantic Coast Line, Southern Railway, Pacific, Great Northern

M'KELLAR LOSES FIGHT TO TRIM TVA OF INDEPENDENCE

Proposal for Senate Rule on U. S. Jobs Also Deleted — Bill Goes to White House.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP). — Congress turned down yesterday two long-debated proposals by Senator McKellar (Dem., Tennessee), to bring the Tennessee Valley Authority under closer control of Congress.

The McKellar proposals, offered as amendments to the independent offices appropriations bill, would have required Senate confirmation of appointments of all Federal officials receiving $4500 or more a year, and would have forced TVA to come to Congress periodically for money instead of drawing on its revenues from the sale of power and fertilizer.

The House balked at the amendments, and the Senate finally agreed to their elimination.

Today the independent offices bill was sent to the White House without them. It carries $8,577,933,978, of which $6,766,000,000 is for the maritime commission.

Congress did agree, however, that TVA hereafter must submit to Senate and House appropriations committees every four months detailed statements of its receipts and disbursements.

PETRILLO REJECTS WLB ORDER ON RECORD MAKING

Asserts Work for Three Firms Will Not Be Resumed Without Union Contracts.

CHICAGO, June 16 (AP). — Challenging the jurisdiction of the War Labor Board, President James C. Petrillo of the AFL American Federation of Musicians asserted last night that members of his union would not resume making of phonograph and radio recordings without a contract for royalties.

Resumption of the recordings was ordered yesterday by the WLB, which gave assurance that royalty payments would be made on the records but did not provide that such payments would be made to the union, as Petrillo has demanded.

Petrillo's proposal was to provide a fund for unemployed musicians. The WLB order sets up a fund, but the method of distributing the fund will be determined by a board of arbitration, unless the union and the record makers can agree.

The dispute over recordings has been an issue for nearly two years since Petrillo ordered AFM members to cease making records. All record making was barred for several months, later the union reached agreements with a number of firms for payment of royalties. Yesterday's decision, however, directly affects Victor, Columbia and the transcription division of the National Broadcasting Co., which had not entered into contracts with the union.

"The War Labor Board has ruled in Washington that we send our men back to work for Columbia and RCA recording companies without a contract," Petrillo said. "The AFM convention passed resolutions here last week not to send the men back to work unless we get a contract signed from those two companies. We now have 86 contracts signed with 36 companies. The AFM is not sending the men back to work until they get a contract from those two companies."

Charlotte Greenwood

She Does All Right Despite Her Height

By Harold Heffernan

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch HOLLYWOOD.

WHILE most tall girls often feel badly about their plight, there's one who says, "and thanks for making me tall" every night when she says her prayers. The girl is Charlotte Greenwood.

CHARLOTTE GREENWOOD

"Not so much of a girl any more," she laughed. "When you're facing your fortieth year in show business—well, let's talk about something else. I used to think being tall was a horrible handicap and it used to get me down terribly. And yet being tall has made me financially independent. It has also enabled me to tour the world and to make good—I hope—in show business."

"I THINK ALL tall girls would do better if they'd stop worrying about it. This town of Hollywood is full of people who have handicapped their way to success. They use their 'handicaps' to get them to the top faster."

And if you don't think Charlotte Greenwood is correct, just cast an eye over the important figures of movietown who didn't let little things like physical handicaps throw them for a loss. In fact they capitalized heavily on them.

FOR INSTANCE, no one can say Mickey Rooney's being short has done him any harm. Mickey takes the sting out of his abbreviated stature by bringing up the subject in his pictures and poking fun at it. Then there's Jimmy Durante. A grand comedian, but he took full advantage of that interesting nose. He hung the nickname, "Schnozzle," on himself. Without that proboscis he might be little better than average as a funster.

A lot of people with gravel voices like Andy Devine and Eugene Pallette might think there's no chance for them in pictures. Those voices are trademarks for Andy and Gene. William Bendix is one of the most successful character actors in Hollywood today because of a homely mug. A good looking Bendix would hardly get anywhere in this business. The list goes on indefinitely.

MISS GREENWOOD is doing all right in Hollywood. She has a beautiful home, a fine bank account and has just finished her tenth picture, "Home in Indiana." Most of her acting has been done in musicals at Twentieth Century-Fox. She will spend most of the summer substituting on the air for Bob Hope while he hobnobs with the G.I.'s in the South Pacific.

"There's only one drawback to this being tall business," Charlotte concluded. "Men just don't seem to have any sympathy for the big girls. They save that for the little cuddly ones. If I ever were so foolish as to faint men wouldn't run to catch me—they'd run to get out of the way."

OLDEST EMPLOYEE at Paramount is a grizzled driver named John Waldeck. He drives an old car and has been on the lot since Donald Crisp made his first picture there, in 1913. A distinguished visitor was being taken around the other day and came to the stage where Joel McCrea and Gail Russell are making "Fear." Joel told the visitor about the old man, who was on the stage at the time. The visitor asked to be introduced. "It must have been wonderful," he said to the old man, "to have the industry burst upon you and then grow up around you."

The old man looked off to one side, carefully spat, and then turned back. "Well," he said, "I'll tell ye. If I'd known it was going to be so famous I'd a watched what want on."

JOHN FARROW, just finished directing "Two Years Before the Mast," will be presented with two new honor decorations next week. A commander in the Canadian Navy, he will receive the 1939-42 Battle Star and the Canadian Volunteer Medal, with Silver Maple Leaf. The character Bing Crosby plays in "Here Comes the Waves" is a take-off on Sinatra, with Bing finally joining the Navy to escape the snoopers. . . . First industry-wide mass meeting in Hollywood history has been called by 30 unions and guilds for June 18. They are taking the Hollywood Legion fight stadium and are out to give the Motion Picture Alliance a hard 10 rounds.

PICTORIAL STORY OF SUPERFORTRESS, BATTLESHIP OF THE AIR

America's mightiest warbird—the Boeing B-29 Superfortress—rides majestically in streamlined sleekness past Mount Rainier, on a test run in the State of Washington. External armament of the giant plane, of the type that struck Japan yesterday, is not shown, for security reasons.

This striking silhouette of one of the four nacelles and great propellers indicates the vast size of the new dreadnought of the air. The propellers—16½ feet in diameter—are the largest of any plane.

A closeup of the B-29's rounded nose, with "greenhouse," from which pilot operates the craft, powered by four Wright Cyclone engines, each rated at 2200 horsepower. Note huge rubber tires.

A Superfortress (foreground) sails along with a B-17 Flying Fortress, whose proportions are dwarfed by the new stratosphere bomber. The B-29 has a wingspan of 141.2 feet, is 98 feet long, and its height (top of tail to ground) is 27 feet. —Boeing Airplane Co. Photos, except as noted.

A study in contrast: a Kaydet target plane rests beside the Boeing giant. Note airman on wing of small plane. —Associated Press Wirephoto.

The New Films

By CLARISSA START

Good Story of an Average Hero

THE EVE OF ST. MARK at the FOX Theater was made from the Maxwell Anderson play of the same name, a play which was hailed by critics when it opened in the fall of '42 as the "first successful U. S. war play." As a movie, it stacks up with the best films yet produced, lives up to its advance blurb as the "love story of G. I. Joe," and also manages to give us an excellent picture of the attitudes and beliefs of men in uniform, an understanding of the stuff of which average heroes are made. The heroes of "The Eve of St. Mark" are a group of little guys who were called up in the first draft. The main story, simplicity itself, relates how one of them, Quiz West, leaves his farm home, his parents, his brothers, and best girl, goes to camp, is trained, and eventually shipped to the South Pacific with his friends. There on a malaria ridden island they play their small part to retard the onslaught of the Japs in the early days of the war.

It is the sum total of excellent performances that makes this a far better than average picture. William Eythe is the boy, a nice conscientious kid, no ball of fire, but dependable when the going is tough. Anne Baxter is warm and credible as the girl from the next farm. Ruth Nelson and Ray Collins as the parents look as if they stepped from a Grant Wood portrait of Ma and Pa on the farm.

One of the excellent individual performances is by St. Louisan, Vincent Price, who plays a decadent Southern aristocrat. He recites poetry, drowns his doubts in drink, cynically wonders "how close must I come to being horizontal before I earn the right to remain perpendicular." It is the question all the men ask themselves when called on to make the big decision, how close to death must a soldier come before he can live and justify his conscience. This scene of indecision, in a cave on the island, is the best dramatic one in the film. Funniest scene: where Price recites poetry to a juke joint blond (Joann Dolan) while she munches a hamburger with onions, and her companion (Toni Farrow) tries to seduce the farm boy.

A Gangster Film—Nazi Style

THE HITLER GANG at the MISSOURI, reputedly based on factual information, tells the story of the rise of the Nazi party to power in Germany. It wisely sticks to the story of the party during its rise rather than to the events after its success. The narrative begins with Hitler in a hospital for a nervous disorder after the last war, shows how his satellites collected, how the party grew in strength from 64 members in 1920 to 70,000 in 1923, how they advanced on a trail of broken promises and bloody battles. The cast, chosen not for star value, but for their actual resemblance to Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and the rest are startlingly lifelike in appearance. Robert Watson has the fanatic Hitler gleam, the same nervous temperamental gestures. Alexander Pope is a fat, blubbery Goering who believes "terror is a healthy thing," and Martin Kosleck a small sleek rodent-like Goebbels.

With the exception of two graphic scenes of killings and kickings, and the inevitable seduction scene in the course of Hitler's love affair with his niece, the film avoids sensationalism. The facts are sensational enough. Paired with it is GAMBLER'S CHOICE with Chester Morris and Nancy Kelly, all about politicians and gangsters.

Not as Good as It Might Have Been

Most people were led to believe by advance publicity that SHOW BUSINESS at the AMBASSADOR Theater was going to be a cavalcade of American show business with all the acts that made, and killed, vaudeville revived in one nostalgic memory teaser. While the music and material is there, the story concentrates entirely on the doings of five people, George Murphy, Constance Moore, Eddie Cantor, Joan Davis, and Nancy Kelly, who play five people named George, Connie, Eddie, Joan and Nancy, in that order. George meets Connie, George loses Connie, George sings the theme song of the picture—"It Had to Be You"—and wins Connie back. Nancy is the menace and Joan and Eddie clown around.

A major part of the entertaining is done by Cantor and first day audiences seemed highly appreciative of his brand of song and comedy. The songs include "The Curse of an Aching Heart," which Cantor sings in an amateur night scene inspired by his own first experience in show business; "I Want a Girl," "Alabama Bound," "I Don't Want to Get Well," and "Makin' Whoopee." The picture was produced by Cantor who had the idea for such a movie. The idea was a good one, the movie is a good one, but not nearly as good as it might have been.

Romance in a Shipyard

MEET THE PEOPLE at LOEW'S ORPHEUM started out to be a picture about the little guy, too, like the St. Mark movie, but it got off the track somewhere between the story conference room and the super-duper productions department.

There are more things in shipyards than Henry Kaiser ever dreamed of, and most of them are in this picture about a war worker who writes a show and gets it produced right in his own back shipyard. Dick Powell is the brash young man, and is at his toothiest juvenile best, cracking wise, and singing ballads in rich fruity tones.

As Swane Swanson, he wins a bond selling contest and a date with Julie Hampton (Lucille Ball), a musical comedy queen who wears formal even to hamburger stands. Lucille agrees to produce a show which Powell has written, and it's about to open when Dick looks in on rehearsal and finds his shipyard workers wearing rhinestone studded coveralls and feather fluff welders' helmets. "This will not do," he cries. "This show is about the peepul—greatest show on earth, etc." He takes the show back to the shipyard and Lucille follows to become a welder and "meet the people."

Redeeming features are Bert Lahr, always an incomparable comic, Virginia O'Brien, who got her start in the original "Meet the People," and does well at a song that goes, "I never knew that our love had ended till you tried to poison my food." Spike Jones and Vaughan Moore contribute the music.

Bad Girl Gets Good Guy

LADIES OF WASHINGTON, second feature at the FOX proves that it's the bad girl who gets the good guy and also that the easiest way to end up in a sanitarium is to go to Washington. Aside from that, it's the usual girls' dormitory sort of picture, with service women and war workers in a Washington boarding house. Trudy Marshall, Ronald Graham, Sheila Ryan, Anthony Quinn, and Robert Bailey in the cast.

THE FALCON OUT WEST at the AMBASSADOR takes the daring detective out West in the usual Whodunit. SHE'S A SOLDIER TOO, at LOEW'S ORPHEUM is about two old maids who take in some swing-shift Susies and a baby who thaws out their icy hearts. BUFFALO BILL with Joel McCrea and Maureen O'Hara, and FOUR JILLS IN A JEEP, both previously reviewed are at the ST. LOUIS. TWO GIRLS AND A SAILOR with Van Johnson and THE BLACK PARACHUTE are held over at LOEW'S STATE.

THIS IS THE ARMY, screen version of Irving Berlin's well known show, may be seen for the first time at popular prices at the SHUBERT Theater.

They'll Do It Every Time

Care of Tomato Plants

REPORTS from Victory Garden headquarters state that the "rookies" are worried by "leaf curl," of their tomato plants. Even the veterans of many successful gardening campaigns are a bit low in morale, for curling leaves and wilting branches are spotted in the rows all around town.

Don't worry; this isn't a dangerous enemy! In 98 out of 100 cases it is NOT that serious "wilt" disease that may sabotage tomato production and even kill the plants. It isn't a fungus or a bacteria. Leaf curl is due to rapid weather changes. Thunderstorms and muggy days have been slapped right up against blistering hot, dry weather and sudden cool spells. In our gardens, few of us can boast loose, loamy, well-aerated soil to compare with that in the greenhouses and beds where the plants were started. The root systems have a different sort of job of throwing out delicate "hair" roots to absorb food and moisture from the earth. In our garden clay. Their job is essential. They are the plumbing system that has to meet the orders for more moisture up above on hot drying days. Without warning and with no volunteer help to call upon, you can understand that this weather has overtaken that regular plumbing facilities. And then we see "leaf curl."

The weatherman must order the only sure cure! But we can and should help along. Here's how! First of all a stimulating, well-balanced meal will strengthen the plants. With your hoe, make a shallow furrow, just about an inch deep and four inches away from the stem, around each tomato plant. Now get out your Victory Garden Fertilizer. Mix 1 pound into 2 gallons of water and stir it up. Each plant must get its share; 1 pint of this solution. Use a pint size measuring cup to dip out the solution and pour it into the furrows and stir your soil before each dip. After each plant has had its "pick-me-up," close up the furrows with your hoe, and we're ready for the next order of the day.

To keep the soil temperature and the soil moisture as even as possible, our tactics are mulching. You can use straw, peat moss, lawn clippings, hay, broken up corn stalks or—and here's about the simplest and cheapest good idea—sawdust! Just one inch of sawdust will do the trick. If you don't lime your soil this season, scatter crushed or agricultural lime on the soil at the rate of 50 pounds to 1000 square feet of garden space, before you lay down the sawdust. Or you can mix a good handful of hydrated lime or wood ashes to each bushel basket or wheelbarrow full of the sawdust.

There are five good reasons to mulch your tomatoes. First mulch covering keeps the weeds from growing and so cuts out the labor of weeding. It prevents soil from baking after a heavy rain. Third, it makes possible suitable conditions for feeding roots near the surface of the soil. Next, it checks evaporation of moisture from the top soil. Last and best of all, you'll be able to check off your "must" list most of the hoe work of cultivating during the dog days in July and August. Add up all these reasons and you know why mulching is the system of all smart, efficient and well-maybe, lazy gardeners, as well as a part of the cure for "leaf curl."

My Day -o-

WASHINGTON, Wednesday. HE all-day meeting which was held here yesterday, I felt accomplished its objective. The organizations represented agreed that they would build up a roster of available vocations in various fields and this roster would be made obtainable to Government officials. They decided to appoint national and international committees which will now, and in the future, present and consider host-work problems. This ought to be of real value and the by-product may be a greater interest on the part of women in other women who may be qualified either as experts in some particular line, or as policy-making people, because of the breadth of their general interest and knowledge.

Last evening I went to the Women's National Press Club dinner where Mrs. Elizabeth May Craig turned over the presidency of the club for the coming year to Miss Edith Gaylord. There is a nice little ceremony which takes place at these annual dinners when the President, who has enjoyed the use of a lovely silver bowl which was given to the club some years ago by Cora Rigby, turns the bowl over to the incoming president and receives in its place a copy which she herself retains. This year, owing to the war, it was impossible to give a duplicate of the bowl, but another old silver piece was found and will remain one of Mrs. Craig's most treasured possessions, I am sure.

The speaker of the evening was Mr. George E. Sterling of the Federal Communications Commission in charge of what might be called the FBI service of the air, who gave us an interesting and instructive talk. He realized again that every occupation has its vocabulary. And I hope that other people were more familiar with some of the words which Mr. Sterling used than I was.

Today I had some people lunch with me and some more people came in for tea and coffee. Tonight I am off for a long weekend in the country.

I find that in praising "the Twin City home makers section of the American Home Economics Association," I only mentioned their interest in the extension of the Price Control Act to check inflation, and I did not mention one thing which they feel is most important and which I am glad to add, because I think a great many women are also interested in it. These homemakers want to see quality of goods tied to price by a thorough program of grade labeling and standardization. They have carried on a great deal of discussion in their group meetings, and they are convinced that now is the time for the OPA to educate people along these lines as without this provision they do not feel 100 percent effectiveness can be obtained. I entirely agree that there should be honest labeling and standardizing of all goods on the market, but I think perhaps at the present time we have so many things to think about, that it would be difficult to get a thorough study and understanding of this question.

receiving more than those who had come at the eleventh hour, but were rebuffed with the rejoinder that they had gotten what they had agreed upon, which was all that they were entitled to. "Take that, time, is, and go thy way," I will give unto this law, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil because I am good?"

Care of Tomato Plants

REPORTS from Victory Garden headquarters state that the "rookies" are worried by "leaf curl," of their tomato plants. Even the veterans of many successful gardening campaigns are a bit low in morale, for curling leaves and wilting branches are spotted in the rows all around town.

Don't worry; this isn't a dangerous enemy! In 98 out of 100 cases it is NOT that serious "wilt" disease that may sabotage tomato production and even kill the plants. It isn't a fungus or a bacteria. Leaf curl is due to rapid weather changes. Thunderstorms and muggy days have been slapped right up against blistering hot, dry weather and sudden cool spells. In our gardens, few of us can boast loose, loamy, well-aerated soil to compare with that in the greenhouses and beds where the plants were started. The root systems have a different sort of job of throwing out delicate "hair" roots to absorb food and moisture from the earth. In our garden clay. Their job is essential. They are the plumbing system that has to meet the orders for more moisture up above on hot drying days. Without warning and with no volunteer help to call upon, you can understand that this weather has overtaken that regular plumbing facilities. And then we see "leaf curl."

The weatherman must order the only sure cure! But we can and should help along. Here's how! First of all a stimulating, well-balanced meal will strengthen the plants. With your hoe, make a shallow furrow, just about an inch deep and four inches away from the stem, around each tomato plant. Now get out your Victory Garden Fertilizer. Mix 1 pound into 2 gallons of water and stir it up. Each plant must get its share; 1 pint of this solution. Use a pint size measuring cup to dip out the solution and pour it into the furrows and stir your soil before each dip. After each plant has had its "pick-me-up," close up the furrows with your hoe, and we're ready for the next order of the day.

To keep the soil temperature and the soil moisture as even as possible, our tactics are mulching. You can use straw, peat moss, lawn clippings, hay, broken up corn stalks or—and here's about the simplest and cheapest good idea—sawdust! Just one inch of sawdust will do the trick. My OPINION

By MARTHA CARR

Dear Martha Carr:

I WENT South to visit my husband in April, where he is taking his basic army training. While there I met his buddy, who was very homesick. The three of us went around together, I had him at our apartment for home-cooked meals and he finally got over being so homesick. In June he and my husband will be sent to different camps, and Bob is to send his address to me to pass on to my husband as soon as he is located. Will it be all right for me to write to Bob, to send him home-made cookies, etc., when I send them to my husband? My husband will probably be too busy to write him often, he does get homesick and lonely, and I know he will like hearing of my husband and children.

MRS. M. J. H.

It seems to me this is a matter for you and your husband to decide upon, not an outsider. It seems to me that if your husband does not mind, it will be quite all right for you to send cookies, etc., now and then when you are packing a box for him, and an occasional friendly note, all filled with news of the children and the latest from your husband, would be all right and might help a good deal to cheer a lonely fellow. How about getting some attractive young relative who is unattached to take him on and write to him as her good deed?

IN ANSWER TO "Desperate": You say under ordinary circumstances your common sense would tell you to forget this man. Then proceed to act on your common sense. There is nothing the least extraordinary about a married man claiming to be misunderstood, mistreated, having every kind of wife under the sun from a vixen to an invalid. If he feels, as you say, bound to his wife by honor and by duty, where is his honor? And certainly it is not his duty to be making love to you. You are very young; don't risk your reputation by dating a married man. Make friends among young men who are near your own age and unattached, and refuse to fall for any married man's "line," however much it may appeal to your sympathies.

Dear Martha Carr:

I WOULD LIKE to say a few words to "Stepfather," who wrote you not long ago. When I married my present husband my first marriage had been unhappy, too. I agree some mothers do spoil their children, and I know I spoiled mine, just as your wife seems to be doing. I felt her first years had been upset and I wanted things to be pleasant and happy for her. I was up in arms every time my husband complained I spoiled her, and wouldn't listen to words of advice from anyone. But my husband was patient with me, and eventually we worked out the problem of him living with a stepchild, and me not giving all the attention to the youngster, but a rightful amount to him. Now he is the most wonderful father a child ever had, and a marvelous husband. I think perhaps your wife, "Stepfather," feels about her children as I did about mine, regrets the unhappy years, wants to make up to them. So be patient a while longer, talk matters over quietly with your wife. She may not understand your side of the question and it is up to you to make her see it. I know you will end by solving your problem and be as happy as we are. "Our" child thinks daddy the finest fellow in the world—and so do I. Your wife and her children will feel this way, too.

HAPPY WIFE AND MOTHER.

IN ANSWER TO "A. A. D. and W. L. D.": Phone or write the Girl Scouts headquarters here, 4233 Magnolia street, FRospect 7528. Give your address and you will be told the Girl Scout troop nearest you, the leader, where it meets and when.

IN ANSWER TO "Worried": Nail polish remover should remove the polish from your cotton dress. Pour it on the spot and rub between the fingers. Wash then in soapy water and rinse well. If this isn't successful, ether should take it out, or oil of wintergreen.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

AT THE request of an official of the Postoffice I am again repeating the necessity for putting your return address on the face (not the back) of every letter that you want to have returned to you should it be misdirected.

DEAR MRS. POST: Our employer is an officer in the Navy, and we have just learned through the newspapers that he is being married. He has sent no personal word to any of us here in his offices and we have not received an invitation to the wedding, which will take place very shortly. We are all rather hurt about being overlooked but we want to do what is right about sending him—or his bride—a wedding present. Do you think we should? Or should not?

Answer: There is certainly no obligation to send either him or his bride, a wedding present. Even if you had all been invited to the church there would have been no obligation. But you may of course send him a present if you like him very much. Ordinarily a wedding present is always addressed to the bride, but in the case of his office where he is known and she is not, this one exceptional present (if you choose to send it) may quite properly be addressed to him alone.

DEAR MRS. POST: What is the proper wording for the formal announcements of a bride's marriage whose parents have not been reconciled to it?

Answer: If they won't even let their names be used on the marriage announcements, she would have to use her own and fiancé's names, this way:

Miss Mary Jane Brown and
Mr. John Henry Grantland have the honor of announcing their marriage

If the bride is very young and lives at home with her parents, such notices would of course emphasize her parents' disapproval. But if she is somewhat older this wording would be quite conventional.

A NUMBER of readers have asked me to remind their friends and neighbors who can't get telephones for the duration, that they are just as welcome as they ever were, to use their telephones, but that they would like their neighbors to keep track of calls and taxes on calls—very trifling considered call by call, can amount to quite a sum at the end of the month—especially when several families have to share one neighbor's telephone.

A Diet for Gall Bladder Sufferers

By

Logan Clendening, M.D.

CORRESPONDENT writes: "Would you please send me a list of things I might eat as a diet for an upset of the gall bladder. I have a list of what not to eat and it seems to include everything. As far as I can see this list contains everything anyone should eat in order to be at all healthy and gain resistance to fight other diseases or colds. It must be that there is a regular gallbladder diet list by some doctor though I have been unable to obtain any support to that effect."

The diet planned by Dr. Albert F. R. Anderson is well suited to gallbladder dyspepsia and periodic upsets due to mild gallbladder stasis in which the condition is not severe enough or for some other reason surgical intervention is not justified.

It is based on a diet high in fat and on frequent small meals, six a day, rather than three large meals.

THE PRINCIPLES on which this diet is based are that the dyspeptic troubles due to gallbladder depend on stasis of the bile in the gallbladder and infection. In both drainage is indicated and this is obtained by frequent feedings high in fat. Adequate drainage sufficient to overcome gallbladder stasis is accomplished by the presence in an emulsified state of fat in the upper part of the small intestine. Large meals cause pressure and back-damming in the gallbladder while small frequent meals give an effect of continuous drainage and also supply sufficient nourishment.

Dr. Anderson's sample diet is as follows for one day:

Breakfast—Milk, one glass. Cereal, with cream and sugar. Egg, soft boiled or poached. Bread and butter. Fruit, raw, of any kind.

Mid-morning—Milk and crackers; bread and butter, or cake. Luncheon—Milk, one glass. Egg, soft boiled or poached, or cream cheese. Potatoes, baked or mashed. Vegetables, well cooked, any kind. Salad. Bread and butter. Pudding, ice cream, jelly or fruit (raw or cooked).

Mid-afternoon—Milk and crackers; bread and butter, or cake. Supper—Same as luncheon. Bedtime, (and in night of awake)—Milk and crackers; bread and butter, or cake.

Olive Oil—One-half ounce, or cream, one ounce, three times daily with meals.

Water—At least four or five glasses a day.

PATIENTS SHOULD be warned that the diet may aggravate the condition for a short time, but that by adherence to the regimen all symptoms will eventually be alleviated. The diet should not be prescribed when evidence such as slight jaundice indicates blockage of the common duct. If, after reasonable trial, symptoms persist complications which demand surgical intervention may be assumed. Bile salts by mouth will also help by draining the contents of the gallbladder into the intestines, and are sometimes used along with the diet. But the diet alone, if used faithfully, will cause the contents of the gallbladder to drain into the intestines and thus tend to prevent complications. The above one day's diet is only a sample. It does not take much ingenuity to plan varied diets for other days if you keep to the general principles of small, frequent meals containing staple articles high in fats—such as butter, cream, eggs, cheese, salad dressings.

My Neighbor Says:

A bit of cranberry or grape jelly which has been left over makes a nice garnish or topping for a custard or gelatin dessert.

The School That Was Founded on Faith

Education on a Co-operative Basis Is Offered at 'Evergreen Shores.'

By F. A. Behymer

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

CAMDEN, Mo., June 15.

HE boy who sat on his upended suitcase at the edge of the courthouse circle was tired. He had thumbed his way from Wichita, Kan., and it hadn't been easy. There were not many cars on the highways and because he looked old enough to be in the armed services, though he wasn't, some drivers gave him a mean look as they passed him up.

Now, as another car approached, he arose wearily and lifted a languid thumb in token of a desire to get along into the land of Hahatonka. Leroy Kyle was his name, he said, as he climbed into the car. He had been a student at Faith Bible Academy, Evergreen Shores they called it, in a cove on the Big Niangua arm of Lake of the Ozarks. Homesick, he had gone back to Wichita, but he was no sooner there than he was more homesick for Evergreen Shores. "I got lonesome for the place," he said, "so I packed up and headed back."

At Couch, which is only a wide place in the road beyond the Glaze, there was a sign bearing the legend "Fellowship of Faith," indicating that such a fellowship was to be found by turning into the side road that led to the Evergreen Shores. That would be Evergreen Shores. It was only a mile and a half down to the lake shore, said Leroy Kyle, making light of walking a mile and a half carrying a heavy suitcase, but the car was turned into the by-road, for here was an adventure that seemed worth following through.

So the stranger who hadn't been there before and the boy who couldn't stay away came to Evergreen Shores, where the Fellowship of Faith flourishes beyond the understanding of unbelievers, though its needs are great.

The school's door was swung wide by Corinne Lee, who had seen Leroy Kyle when he was yet a far off. "Hello, Leroy," she welcomed him. Heads were poked from doorways and there were "Hello, Leroy's," all over the place. They seemed to be glad at Evergreen Shores that Leroy had come back. Dad Shank came from a classroom and shook hands, welcoming him. "I had to come back," said Leroy Kyle. Dad Shank beamed his satisfaction. Mom Shank, coming in, added her welcome and was happy because the boy who had been lost was now found.

This, then, was Evergreen Shores, the home of the Fellowship of Faith, the seat of Faith Bible Academy, the place where young men and young women who had missed their chance could get an education and learn how to live on a little piece of land, keep cow and a flock of chickens and serve the neglected country churches of the Ozarks. That was what Dad Shank had dreamed and what he had founded on faith and a prayer.

The Rev. Ernest F. Shank was a school teacher for three years and a Baptist preacher for 27 years. He had been pastor of a church at Wichita, Kan., for 16 years when he hearkened to the call of the hills and, moving to Salem, in the Ozarks, hoping a pastorate there would open the way to the kind of a school that he had long wanted to found. A school for youths who had not gone beyond the grades and had to work their way through college. A vacation in 1941 in a cabin on Big Niangua drew his attention to the region as the location for the school because, in addition to the scenic lure, there were fields in the valley that could be tilled by the students for production of the food that would be needed.

A few miles south, on the Big Niangua arm of the lake, stood Red Arrow Lodge, where officials of the Union Electric Co. had lavishly entertained in promotion of the company's purposes. There had been an investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission, which frowned upon such doings. The lodge had been boarded up and was for sale what was called a bargain price.

Shank visited the clubhouse and under the encouragement of a few who shared his dream, a small down payment was made, and the property was taken over under a contract calling for monthly payments. With the Baptists holding prayer meetings where the politicians had held high carnival, the word went out that Red Arrow Lodge had got religion.

The lodge buildings were all right for school purposes, but there was a lack of tillable land, and this was a drawback. On the alert for a location that would better meet the school's requirements, when Jim Jenner, the County Collector, told him about the Niangua Fish and Game Preserve which had been established by a group of St. Louis men on Big Niangua. Ownership had finally fallen to Charles E. Morrow, a St. Louis attorney, and the time had come when, on account of declining health, he felt that he had to give it up. There were 416 acres of fields and woodland surrounding the lake in this cove, fed by a great spring, into which the Lake of the Ozarks had come creeping when Bagnell Dam was built.

It was perfect for the purposes of the school, with its two large stone buildings suitable for dormitories, its three cottages and its barn, the water supply piped from the spring and power for the electrical installation from the same source, its pastures and tillable fields. Shank took his wife to see it, and they agreed that it had everything that they needed, but he couldn't buy it and pay for it? They stopped at the gate on the trail to the big spring and looked back over the valley. "Sweet heart," said Shank, "here's everything that we need. We can't do anything about it, but God can. Let's kneel right down here and ask God to make it possible for us to have it." So they knelt and prayed, making their simple petition in the belief that somehow it would be answered.

That was on a Saturday afternoon. On the next Monday afternoon Red Arrow Lodge burned to the ground. The Shanks and the students lost practically everything. It looked like the end of the dream but they were not downhearted. They all stood beside the embers and sang "Our Father is rich in houses and lands. He holdseth the wealth of the world in his hands." They knelt and rededicated themselves to a greater endeavor.

The Shanks estimated their loss at $4000, but there was $2000 insurance on the building. So their loss was the school's gain. In a way of looking at it. The insurance money would help make the down payment on the Morris property. Also there was a farm near Rolla which had been given to the school by Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Ueltzen. It was sold for $1500. Dr. F. W. Shannon of Lebanon mortgaged his home to raise $500, which he loaned to the school. So the property was bought under a plan for monthly payments on the balance of the purchase price. Now the Fellowship of Faith is rich in houses and lands and is paying for them with contributions of 10 cents to $500 that come from friends who want to help.

What the students are required to pay doesn't help much. The charge for board and tuition is $7 a week, of which $4 a week is returned to each student as wages for work done. Even if the $7 a week cannot be paid no student is turned away. One who cannot pay just stays on and works his way. There are 14 full time students now and several from the neighborhood who come for music lessons. The plan is for many more when larger dormitories have been built. In addition to the high school courses the boys are instructed in farming and stock raising and the girls are taught cooking, sewing and housework. Four hundred acres are under cultivation or in grass. The stock includes four horses, eight milk cows and young cattle, 17 fat hogs, three sows and 20 pigs.

The larger plan of the school is to have a college course for the particular purpose of educating ministers for country churches, teaching them how to supplement their meager earnings by farming in a small way, urging upon them the country ministry as a life career and not as a stepping stone to city pastorates.

Assisting Rev. and Mrs. Shank (Dad and Mom to the students) on the teaching staff are their son, Robert, pastor of a church at Camden, Mo., and his wife. The rules for the students are strict, but disciplinary action is seldom necessary. As a general rule students who fit into the school have no inclination to disobey its rules. If they don't fit they are encouraged to depart. They cannot be absent from the premises without leave. No petting or smoking or drinking is allowed. Boys and girls are not allowed to swim together or roam together after dark.

Bill Francis, who comes from Wichita, leaving off the reading of the Vicar of Wakefield in the library, says it's a nice place to be because kids don't have the temptations that they do in town. And Leroy Kyle, knowing again a deep content, says that is why he was lonesome for the place and had to come back.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

IT is a sound idea to plan the bidding in such a way that the opening lead will probably come up to, rather than through, kings or tenace positions, but planning is one thing and distortion of the bidding is quite another. Consider this typical case:

North dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

North	East	South	West
♠ A Q 10 8 5	♠ K 6	♠ K 7 4	♠ A 9 7 3
♥ A 5	♥ Q J 10 8 7	♥ A 9 7 3	♥ K 6 4 3
♦ Q 8 4 3	♦ A 10 9 2	♦ K 7	♦ J 6 5
♣ J 9 2	♣ Q 10 8 5 4	♣ K 9 2	♣ K 7

The bidding:
North 1 spade
East 2 spades
South 3 no trump
West 3 no trump

West opened the diamond queen. Declarer ducked in both hands, but the diamond continuation knocked out the ace and when the heart king was then played, East won and removed declarer's last diamond stopper. The spade finesse lost, and East put away with a club to run the rest of the diamond suit. Down two.

South lost just three diamond tricks more than would have been lost at the correct contract, four spades. It was not North's fault that the hands were played at no trump. He had rebid his spades suit once; surely, he could not be bid it again over two no trump when doing so would not only announce a longer spade suit than North held, but would simultaneously deny the ability to play at no trump. Considering that North had an honor in all three suits outside of spades, such a denial would not have been very logical.

It was South who took it upon himself to decide that no trump would be superior to spades, and why he should have this view with so little in diamonds and clubs, is more than I can say. Four spades would have been a perfectly sound contract.
